Illustrations of Greeleyism in the West and South.

Greeleyism Illustrated in Missouri—The Rebel Flag Displayed, and the Stars and Stripes Hauled Down.

A telegram to the St. Louis Globe gives the following account of a disgraceful affair at Palmyra, Mo., on Thursday last: "A Greeleyite meeting had been advertised to come off, and in order to create the necessary enthusiasm a rebel flag was hung out from the 'Liberal' head-quarters. This naturally raised indignation among the loyal citizens, who forced it to be taken down, when afterward the American flag was thrown to the breeze from Republican head-quarters, with the names of Grant and Wilson attached. A rebel mob congregated and demanded the hauling of it down. The Republicans refused, and proposed to stand by the flag. The City Council was called together and decided that it be taken down. Some timid citizens joined with them, as they said, to prevent a riot. The consequence was our great national colors were hauled down in obedience to the demands of the rebel supporters of Horace Greeley."

Greeleyism Illustrated in Louisiana—A Republican Newspaper Office Destroyed.

A cowardly and disgraceful act was committed by the Greeleyites in Carroll La., on the night of Oct. 6, when the press of the Lake Providence Straight-out Republican was destroyed and its type scattered through the street. In an extra issued on the 11th, Mr. W. H. Abbott, the editor, says: "We know not the individuals who did this, nor do we care to know them, except so far as it is our duty as a good citizen to place them in the hands of justice. Sufficient for our purpose is to know the party who inspired the deed of violence. That party we do know. That party is the one opposed to the Republican Party. The party composed of the Republican Party of Carroll, is that known as the Gla-Lanier and Yorke Democracy. In the nation it is known as the Greeley Democracy. It was the Gla-Lanier and Yorke Democracy, then, that inspired the move that resulted in destroying our press and scattering our type. How desperate the situation of the party when driven to the wall by the truthful statements which our paper made as to the attempt to sell out the Republicans of Carroll to the Democracy, as to the hollow professions of some of the leaders of this same party, and as to the baseness of character of others—how desperate was the situation when the destruction of our press was their only remedy! But in attempting to destroy us they have gone from bad to worse, as by this act the last vestige of hope and strength from that Republican Party has disappeared from the ship of the Gla-Lanier Democracy. Since this attempt at our destruction many give us an approving nod that never smiled upon us before. It has made the ink-warm hot for us; it has caused those who were balancing on the fence to take side quickly in our ranks; it has inspired our friends with renewed action, and as we shake our new type into these words, and think of the martyrs who, like us, have been persecuted for opinion's sake, we make a firm resolve to expose the infamy of the Gla-Lanier and Yorke Democracy stronger and bolder than ever before."

A Democratic Paper Hauls Down Greeley's Name.

The Standard, an influential Democratic journal published at Anderson, Ind., which has until recently been an ardent supporter of Greeley for the Presidency, on Friday morning last hauled down the name and gave the reason for refusing to support him longer for that position. The telegram announcing the action says that the Standard is a paper of great influence in the Democratic Party in its locality.

Another Democratic Journal Repudiates Greeley.

The Ovid (Seneca County) Bee, which has always been a Democratic journal, has had the names of Greeley and Brown at the head of its columns since June last, but has now taken them down and declared in favor of the re-election of President Grant, for the following, with other, excellent reasons: "As the platforms do not create any issues worth the trouble of discussing, the burden of proof falls upon those who are clamoring for a change in the Administration. Good and forcible reasons should be given, not clap-trap about Grant's cousins. The record of the Republican Party down to the present time, has, in the main, been satisfactory, and those who were fighting it have so admitted by their 'departure.' It is a great deal safer to continue this order of affairs than to place in power a party which, since its so-called regeneration, has no record at all, and, by its past acts, can give no guarantee that its future course will be satisfactory. As an independent journalist, we have the right to speak upon this, as also upon other questions in the present canvass. A life-long Democrat, we would have Democracy pure and unadulterated, if possible, and candidates, especially for county offices, fairly nominated, for rings and cabals are our greatest abomination."

Another Democrat Out for Grant.

Thomas J. Byrne, a Westchester County Democrat of large influence in the county, and one who has held a number of prominent positions, has published a letter declaring his preference for Grant and Dix. He says:

"How, Sir, let me ask, can any man who has learned Democracy from either Jefferson, Madison, or Monroe, support Greeley and Kernan, opposed, both of them, to the perpetuity of the institution founded by the fathers."

Senator Henry Wilson in Newark.

The largest Republican mass-meeting of the campaign was held at the Rink last evening. Over 5,000 persons were gathered within the walls of the building, while as many more were marching in procession, with torches and bands of music, outside. Hon. Courtlandt Parker presided, and opened the proceedings with a brief speech. Introducing Senator Wilson it was not, he said, so much the Senator the orator or the writer that he most honored; it was Henry Wilson, the working man, and the friend of working men.

Senator Wilson was received with enthusiastic applause, long and loud cheering greeting his appearance. When these demonstrations had subsided, Senator Wilson began an address of some length, in which he reviewed the issues of the campaign, and upon the conclusion of his speech another outburst of applause was given.

Greeleyism in Tennessee.

In a letter accepting a Republican nomination for Elector at large in Tennessee, Mr. A. J. Hicks says: "No sensible man can reconcile the acts of the Tennessee Greeley Democracy with its professions. With one hand it tenders the olive branch to Horace Greeley and his liberal allies, professing a sincere desire for reconciliation and a more fraternal union with the Northern people, while with the other it aggressively and insultingly repels from its ranks every man who was in sympathy with the Government during the war. While loudly complaining of oppression from the North, it is sedulously proscribing every man in the State who was loyal to his country in the time of its peril. While obsequious and zealous to an unmanly degree to swallow Horace Greeley with all his obnoxious record for the professed object of cementing the Union, it puts forward as its candidates for every prominent office in the State, Ex-Confederate officers who did all they could to dismember that Union—puts them forward because of their rebel record, aye, chooses them in preference to better men of their own party whom they reject because they were Union men."

A meeting of the citizens of the Ninth Congressional District was held last night at Lyric Hall, Sixth-avenue, to ratify the nomination of David B. Mellish as candidate for Congress. The hall was crowded. Among those present were many life-long Democrats, who strongly indorsed Gen. Grant. Benjamin R. Phelps, Republican candidate for District-Attorney, presided. He stated the object of the meeting, and delivered a brilliant eulogy on Mr. Mellish's services to the Republican Party. Mr. Horace Russell, who was received with great enthusiasm, addressed the meeting. He said, the re-election of President Grant, by a majority greater than he received in 1868, is already settled beyond peradventure. The anticipated victories of the Democrats have faded away into defeat. Their defeat blackens into despair. It is also settled that we shall have an increased majority in Congress. And we hope a portion of that increase may be in the election of Republican members from the City of New-York.

For many years we have been represented by men whose only public service has consisted in a factious hostility to the General Government, to the neglect of the pressing interests of this City. We have now the opportunity to change all this. It is eminently desirable that we should send men to Washington who are in harmony with the General Government and with the majority in Congress—men who will look after the great financial, commercial and manufacturing interests of this great City. If we make the proper effort, we can elect such a man to represent this Ninth Congressional District.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the nomination of Mr. David B. Mellish for Representative in Congress from the Ninth Congressional District, knowing him to be a man of ability, fidelity and integrity, in full accord with the principles of the Republican Party and with the majority of the incoming Congress, and believing that he will fitly and faithfully represent this great City and secure for it such national legislation as its extended financial, commercial and manufacturing interests require.

Resolved, That in the nomination of Hon. Wm. F. Havemeyer for Mayor, Hon. Noah Davis for Justice of the Supreme Court, Hon. Hooper C. Van Vorst for Justice of the Superior Court, and Hon. Benjamin R. Phelps for District-Attorney, men whose abilities are unquestioned, and whose public and private characters are equally without stain, the Republican Party of the City of New-York has fully met the need of the time, and has demonstrated that it favors thorough and practical administrative and judicial reform.

Resolved, That we pledge to these nominations our cordial and united support.

Eloquent addresses were also delivered by Hon. Wm. A. Darling, Major Douglass, Chas. H. Knox and John R. Russell. The Idlewild Quartet were present, and sang some campaign melodies in an artistic style.

O'Brien Banner Raising in Macdougal-Street.

A mass-meeting and banner raising was held last evening at the corner of Bleecker and Macdougal streets. Daniel Dooley was chosen President, and Peter Mitchell Vice-President. Over the speakers stand were two banners, on one of which was displayed the words—"Eighth and Fifteenth Wards Reform Association, our choice for Mayor, James O'Brien, Tested and True;" and on the other—"The People's Choice for Assistant Alderman of the Fifth District, Theo. Allen." On the stand were Charles W. Brooks, Capt. Liddy, H. D. Marvin, Judge Curtis and others. The President introduced James O'Brien, who addressed the meeting, and remarked he had nothing to say against his opponents personally, except that they were on the track with those who had defrauded the City. He was anxious to secure to the people their rights. When John Jacob Astor and the others of the Committee examined the Controller's books, they reported them all right; but in less than five days he discovered the frauds and showed that the Committee had spoken falsehoods. When he was nominated for Senator, both Lawrence and Havemeyer supported him, and said he was capable of filling any position. He then recited his career, and said he had served two terms as Alderman, one as Sheriff, and one as Senator; and he required more executive ability to fill the office of Sheriff than that of Mayor. He meant reform when he spoke the word, and would not act as other so-called Reformers, by cutting down the laborers' wages, but would commence at the heads of the Departments. He appealed to the working men to compare his past record with that of those who spoke reform four years ago. He closed his remarks by saying that he, socially, was the friend of both his opponents, and had nothing to say against them. The candidate was followed by C. W. Brooks and several other speakers.

Regular Republican Conference Committee.

The Conference Committee of Twenty-one, appointed by the Regular Republican Convention, held a private session, yesterday afternoon, at Republican Hall, to consider the question of nominees for Alderman, Coroner and City Judge. For the two latter offices the Convention had already indorsed the candidates of Democracy, but for the Aldermanic ticket they were unanimously will be "Democratic" nominees. There was little debate, the two attempting to the Aldermen. The Committee have the names of sixty candidates for the office presented to them, and an informal expression of opinion was taken, when the choice was narrowed down to about twenty names. No decision was arrived at and the list of the selected was referred to the Subcommittee.

The Republican Nominations Indorsed by the Committee of Seventy.

There was a very full meeting of the Committee of Seventy last evening, the Vice-Chairman, Hon. John Wheeler, presiding. The nomination of Hon. William F. Havemeyer for Mayor was warmly indorsed, also Noah Davis for Justice of the Supreme Court, and Hooper C. Van Vorst for Judge of the Superior Court. Other indorsements were deferred to Friday night next.

Independent German Nominations.

The Independent German Democratic "General" Committee held a meeting at Falk's Tivoli, in Eighth-street, last night, for the purpose of making nominations for City and County officers. Mr. Chas. Lindemann presided, and Aug. Boese acted as Secretary. On motion, Wm. H. Leonard was nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court, and James C. Spencer for the Superior Court.

Wm. F. Havemeyer was nominated for the Mayoralty, and Judge Bedford for the City Judgeship.

Republican County Nominations.

The Republicans of Schenectady County have made these nominations as follows: For Member of Assembly, D. F. McQueen; Sheriff, James McMillan; County Treasurer, Nicholas J. Schermerhorn; Superintendent of Poor, Harrison Clute. These names are regarded as very strong ones. The Albany Journal says that Mr. McQueen, the candidate for Assembly, is a worthy and popular young man, who will command much support outside of his own party, and whose election is fully assured.

The Failure of Greeleyism.

The Columbus (Ga.) Sun refuses to be longer hoodwinked, or bamboozled. It says bluntly: "Disguise it as we may, and with all the assertions, vindications, wishes and hopes to the contrary, notwithstanding, the late elections in the Middle States demonstrated that Liberal Republicanism is a failure. The leaders at Baltimore were mistaken as to the strength of party cords and sectional antagonisms, and in clutching after a shadow the substance is lost. How it could reasonably be calculated or expected that a dozen disappointed Radicals (however distinguished for talent and social position) could or should influence three millions of good Democratic voters in enough to excite our special wonder—it is one of the mysteries revealed only to politicians. While a few old Northern Radicals were attracting their hundreds to Mr. Greeley at the same time, and by the same power, thousands of firm and honest Democrats were repelled by the unnatural coalition."

The Programme for Apollo Hall Nominations.

The Apollo Hall Committee of Conference were in session last evening, and received a number of delegations from various labor societies and political associations. Despite the reticence of the members of the Judiciary Committee, composed of Messrs. Wm. C. Barrett, Samuel G. Courtney, Whitney and other lawyers belonging to the organization, it has been ascertained that any compromise with Tammany Hall on the Judiciary ticket is indignantly spurned, and that a straight-out ticket will be nominated. The nomination for Judge of Supreme Court lies between John K. Porter and Henry H. Anderson, and for Superior Court between William D. Booth and Henry L. Clinton. The recommendation of the nomination of Judge Sutherland or Gunning S. Bedford for City Judge is as yet undecided upon by the Committee. All the conflicting elements in the committee and organization are strongly in favor of the nomination of Henry L. Clinton for District-Attorney. In the event of his receiving the nomination for the Superior Court Judgeship, Mr. Samuel G. Courtney will probably be strongly urged. If Bedford is made the candidate for City Judge it will be simply in obedience to well-known principles of policy.

Fire in Chicago—Fifty Horses Burned.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—A fire broke out at 7½ o'clock this evening in a large barn belonging to the West-side Omnibus Company, on West Madison-street, and, spreading with incredible rapidity, soon destroyed the entire structure and contents. Fifty horses were burned to death. The fire extended to an adjoining building, a three-story frame, the lower stories occupied by a market and stores, and the upper floors as residences, which was also entirely destroyed, the occupants saving a portion of the furniture. The entire loss is estimated at $50,000; insured $5,000 in the Home of New-York, $2,000 each in the Citizens' and Howard of New-York, $6,000 in the Amazon of Cincinnati. Eight of the barns and stables in the rear were also burned; loss small.

SENSELESS SLANDERS.

Gen. Spinner Disposes of an Entire Crop at Once.

The Swallowing of Greeley Prepared Democrats to Swallow Anything.

An Official Who Has No Existence Invented and an Enormous Lie Put in His Mouth—Impossibility of Paying for a Counterfeit Coupon.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The following correspondence will be interesting to the people of New-York State who are just now the suffering victims of the gross misrepresentations and attempts to mislead, which the Greeleyites transfer from one State to another as fast as they are beaten. Under date of Oct. 12, 1872, Hon. Clinton L. Merriam wrote a letter to Gen. F. E. Spinner, United States Treasurer, of which the following is the material portion. Gen. Spinner's reply is given in full. Mr. Merriam says:

"Perhaps we ought to be content with the righteous verdict of the public, who punish Democratic liars at the polls. Yet I do not like to see my fellow-men, who are honest themselves, led by Democratic leaders to a belief in lies invented and scattered broadcast without regard to quality, quantity, length, breadth or depth—wicked, infamous lies. I read today, and have before me, an article in the Lewis County Democrat, headed 'The Treasury robbed—Satan shows his loot.' It says that the Treasury of the United States—Controller Clark should say that six hundred millions of dollars have been stolen from the United States since Grant's Administration, &c., &c. In the past year alone, three millions in coupons have been paid on overissued bonds, which are the same as counterfeits, and ever since Grant was elected there has been these overissues, until untold millions are sailed away by men in the Treasury, &c., &c. There seems to be but one way to open the eyes of the Democratic papers. They believe anything a Democrat says. Now, my dear General, if I remember rightly, there was an investigating committee ordered by Congress, who went through the books and vaults of the Treasury, last Winter, examining entries, counting gold, currency and bonds. Such an impartial committee would, of course, have a proportion of Democrats. Did they make a report? If so, have the kindness to send it to me with the names of the men constituting the Committee. I assure with you that Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Maine, and Vermont have told us that we are to have no more wars—for it's all old stuff, if report will lie he will steal—to administer the affairs of this Government."

TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES,
WASHINGTON, Oct. 21, 1872.

MY DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 12th inst. was a long time reaching me. Really, I don't know how to treat the first charge, as stated by you as having been made by the Lewis County Democrat, against the management of the Treasury Department, to wit: That $600,000,000 have been stolen from the United States Treasury since Grant's Administration. Had the fact occurred to the getter-up of this manstrous lie that the amount he names would, in gold, make over 1,100 two-horse wagon-loads of over a ton each, he would probably have cut down his estimated stealings ninety per cent. As it stands, the charge is not within the bounds of any reasonable human credulity. It is simply a monstrous fabrication out of whole cloth. But it is barely possible that the gulping down of an unsavory candidate for President, by certain Democratic politicians, may have enlarged their powers of digestion to such an extent that they can now swallow any lie, however enormous.

Controller Clark is quoted as having shown that this statement is true. Who is Controller Clark? There is no such man. Hon. Freeman Clark, the Republican member of Congress from the Rochester District in New-York, was, long ago, and before the present Administration began, Controller of the Currency. As such officer his business was with the affairs of the national banks and their currency. With the other operations of the Government he had nothing whatever to do. Mr. Clark is a high-minded, honorable man, and I feel sure that he is not responsible for this gross, palpable and infamous falsehood, and would, if brought to his notice, at once brand it as such. Messrs. Taylor and Brodhead are the Comptrollers of the Treasury, and both have held their offices for many years. "Controller Clark" is a myth. This wholesale charge is made without any specification, and, as a negative cannot well be proved, I dismiss it with an emphatic denial of it, in whole or in part.

The next charge is, that "in the past year alone three millions in coupons have been paid on over issued bonds, which are the same as counterfeits, and ever since Grant was elected, there have been these overissues, until untold millions are sailed away by men in the Treasury." This charge would perhaps be falsely within the bounds of Democratic credulity. But, unlucky for the bar, he has made a distinct specification that can be sufficiently disproved to satisfy any unbiased fair-minded man. The public debt has not been increased one cent since Gen. Grant assumed the administration of the Government. Hundreds of millions of Government bonds have been paid for and canceled, but not one single bond has ever been added, except in exchange for another for a like amount. The bonds could, therefore, not have been increased during his term of office. An accurate record of all bonds is made in the office of the Register of the Treasury. On the books of this officer a separate page is assigned for every individual coupon bond that has ever been issued since the Republican Party came into power. All coupons are either paid by the Treasurer or by one of the Assistant Treasurers or designated Depositaries of the United States. In all cases, on payment thereon, each coupon is immediately canceled by having a hole punched through it. If paid elsewhere they are forwarded to this office. Here they are all separately examined to test their genuineness, and are carefully compared with the schedules that accompanied the remittances. They are then again canceled, and forwarded with the schedules to the First Auditor, who in turn re-examines all the coupons, and again cancels them. If that officer finds them, and everything connected with them, all correct, he audits, and states an account in my favor, and forwards it with the coupons and schedules to the First Controller of the Treasury, in whose office they are again re-examined and again canceled, and if found to be correct in every particular, the last-named officer then, and not till then, allows me a credit for the amount. Every punch used for cancellation in the four offices named is peculiar in shape, differing in one office from all the others, so that there can be no mistake about their having gone through all the various offices named. From the Controller of the Treasury the coupons go to the Register of the Treasury, with a statement of the particular loan to which they belong, the number and denomination, and the aggregate amount of each remittance. In the last named office each individual coupon is entered in the space prepared for it on the page of the book representing the bond to which it belongs, as first above described, so that the first coupon that should come in of a counterfeit, or an overissued bond, or a duplicate, would be no place for its entry upon the book, would instantly detect fraud. Not one such has ever yet reached the office of the Register, and consequently the proof seems clear that not a single coupon save such as was legitimately issued, and of recorded bonds, for which the money was received into the Treasury, has ever been paid by the Government.

These limiters of the officers of the Treasury affect to have forgotten that the Treasury was thoroughly overhauled last Winter, and an examination made of its books, accounts and cash on hand, by a committee of experts, of which George W. Riggs, Esq., the eminent banker and honest Democrat, was Chairman, who reported everything as stated and called for by the books and vouchers as being correct and right. At the same time, and continuing afterward to the close of the session, a committee of the House of Representatives, of which Hon. John Lynch was Chairman, and Messrs. Sypher, Hay, Barnum and Kendall were members, made a like examination. All these were honest and competent men and two of them Democrats. Although this last Committee did not complete their investigations for the want of time, the members were satisfied that everything was right so far as they went.

Since the receipt of your letter I have made such investigation, in regard to the specific charges, as satisfies me that not a single coupon has ever been paid for, save such as were legitimately issued with bonds for which the Government received the money value. But it seems useless to disprove these baseless falsehoods, and I therefore had area of bounds to believe it was worth the while to answer or even to notice it, in any way. The moment one lie is record to the conduct of the President, or the officers acting under him, is disproved and disposed of, another, if possible more monstrous, is immediately coined and put in circulation. We can afford to be patient. A few days more, and the people will decide by their votes the issue that these calumniators have made with the administration of public affairs.

Very respectfully yours,
F. E. SPINNER,
Treasurer of the United States.

DEMOCRATS THROWING GREELEY OVER.

Gen. J. S. Negley, the Representative from the Pittsburg District of Pennsylvania, is in town. He reports that by a careful poll of Allegheny County it will give Grant a majority of at least 13,000. Very many Democrats who would not vote for Hartranft, or any part of the Republican State ticket, will vote for the Grant Electors.

TAMMANY FRAUDS IN ST. LOUIS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 21.—No little excitement has been created in the city today by the exposure in the St. Louis Journal, of what appear to be most astonishing frauds in connection with the building of the new county jail. The plan adopted in defrauding is exactly similar to that of the Tammany Ring in regard to the New-York County Court-house as published in the TIMES. An Investigating Committee on the construction of the jail report that the sum of $104,119 60 has been expended over the actual cost of the building, and a large sum must at once be expended for repairs. Prominent politicians are involved in the matter, some of whom will attempt a defense. The exposure has excited general attention and interesting developments are certain to ensue.

NAVAL AFFAIRS.

The North Atlantic Fleet—Arrival of the Flag-Ship at Fortress Monroe.

FORTRESS MONROE, Va., Oct. 19.—The United States steamer Worcester, flag-ship of the North Atlantic Fleet, which sailed from Boston on the 12th inst., arrived here yesterday afternoon and anchored in Hampton Roads, just above the fort. She flies the flag of Rear-Admiral Joseph F. Greene, who has been recently assigned to the command, vice Admiral Lee, retired. The Worcester encountered severe weather during the entire passage. On the second day out she encountered a very severe gale from the south-west, which caused the vessel to roll heavily, and strained her upper works severely, causing her to make considerable water. The Worcester had been supplied with a new propeller at Boston, which, in rough weather, did not work as smoothly as the old one, and as the gale was too fierce to carry much canvas, they experienced a pretty severe shaking up. There has been considerable change in her officers since she arrived here, some two months ago, from the West Indies, with Admiral Lee on board. The following is a list of her present officers: Rear-Admiral Joseph F. Greene, Commander-in-Chief North Atlantic Fleet; Capt. J. B. Creighton, Commanding United States steamer Worcester; Lieut.-Commander J. C. Kenney, Chief of Staff; Lieut.-Commander Silas W. Ferry, Executive Officer; Lieut.-Commander Charles Sigsbee, Navigating Officer; Flag-Lieutenant Adolph Marix; Midshipmen, J. B. Collins, J. J. Hunker, C. H. Lyman, M. C. Dimock, J. H. Bull, J. B. Milton, L. L. Reamey; Fleet Engineer, D. B. Macomb; Fleet Pay-master, Edward Foster; Fleet Surgeon, George Peck; Captain of Marines, N. Nokes; Chaplain, G. B. Crawford; First Assistant Engineers, George Sensor and R. H. Hine; Assistant Surgeons, Wm. G. Bowen and Charles O. Casan; Lieutenant of Marines, J. C. Quackenbush; Admiral's Clerk, L. M. Elliott; Fleet Clerks, Geo. A. Swift; Pay Clerk, S. S. Gilchrist; Boatswain, Wm. S. Bond; Gunner, S. R. Watkins; Carpenter, S. P. Ward; Sail-maker, Wm. Whiting.

How long the Worcester will remain here is not known, but it is probable she will proceed to the Norfolk Navy-yard, to have some calking done to her upper works. When she sails for the West Indies, Admiral Green will proceed to Key West and Havana and make a thorough inspection of the vessels in those waters, and in the Spring will return North and resign his commission as officer in rank, and he will be placed on the retired list.

Gen. Wm. F. Barry, commandant of the Artillery School, gave a hop last evening in the garrison, to which the officers of the Worcester were invited. Quite a number of them attended, and enjoyed the Lenten festivities very much. The ladies of the garrison are making arrangements to give a leap-year party on Friday evening next, which promises to be the finest affair of the season, and will at least be a break in the routine of usual weekly hops.

The revenue cutter Northerner, which has been cruising in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries for the last two years, has been ordered to Key West, and the revenue cutter Colfax, Capt. George W. Moore, has taken her place. During the Winter months she will cruise outside the Capes of Virginia, Chesapeake and will no doubt be of valuable service to vessels in distress.

The new screw-pile light-house on the Rumble Shoals, which has been christened the "Bug Light," is in successful operation, and the old Willoughby Spit Light has been withdrawn, and its position marked by a black buoy.

Our European Squadron at Lisbon—Departure for Cadiz.

LISBON, Oct. 21.—The American fleet sailed today for Cadiz. The King and Queen visited the fleet on Saturday, and lunched on board the flag-ship. On Sunday Admiral Alden and the Captains were invited to dine at the palace, and were most cordially entertained by the King and members of the royal family.

THE FINANCES.

Meetings of Merchants who Oppose Receiving Protested Greenbacks.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 21.—The meeting of business men at the Chamber of Commerce today, to consider the question of a release of greenbacks, resulted in a vote in opposition to that policy, and a request to Secretary Boutwell to continue the sales of gold and the purchase of bonds.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—A meeting of business men was held at the Commercial Exchange, today, to discuss the proposed reissuance of forty-four millions in legal tenders. The only business done was the submission of resolutions by Geo. Fox, to the effect that the business men of Philadelphia would indorse the continuance of Secretary Boutwell's former policy, viz.: the purchase of bonds from time to time, to relieve the money market. The resolutions were referred to a committee. The next meeting will be held at the call of the Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

Action of the Philadelphia Board of Trade.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 21.—The Philadelphia Board of Trade passed the following resolution to night:

Resolved, That the Philadelphia Board of Trade deprecate any such expansion of the currency as that proposed in the release of $44,000,000 of legal tenders, and would advocate every suitable means for the resumption of specie payment.

NEW-YORK.

Lyman Tremain at Oswego—Powerful Argument Against Greeley—"Sunset" Cox's Misrepresentations of Him Answered—Democratic Frauds Discovered.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The magnificent greeting this evening extended to Hon. Lyman Tremain is an event in the history of our great political demonstrations. Doolittle Hall was crowded to suffocation, and it is safe to say that an audience of higher tone could not be found in the county. Fully a third of the number were ladies, who listened with the closest attention, and frequently broke forth in spontaneous applause. The speaker made out the same unanswerable case against Mr. Greeley which he has frequently made during the campaign. Subsequently he took up in rotation the false statements of Mr. Cox, uttered upon the same platform a few nights previous, in reference to his own record and that of the Republican Party, showing conclusively the disgraceful shifts resorted to by Cox. The speaker was frequently interrupted by prolonged applause.

One incident kindled the enthusiasm to a perfect blaze. The Palladium, the Greeley organ of this city, and the subservient tool of a prominent leader of the unwashed, printed and extensively circulated a garbled, disconnected copy of Mr. Tremain's Tweddle Hall speech

FIRE DEPARTMENT FUNDS.

Denial of the Commissioners' Motion for a Mandamus.

A motion was made several days since before Judge Barrett, in Supreme Court, Chambers, for a writ of mandamus to compel Controller Green to pay a requisition of the Fire Commissioners for $125,000. It was claimed on the part of the Commissioners that under the law they had a right to make their requisition on the Controller for a gross sum, which they would then disburse to the various parties having claims against the Department; on the part of the Controller it was claimed that he had the right to make the specific disbursements. Judge Barrett has now rendered his decision denying the application of the Commissioners, and as the question is one of importance involving the expenditure of a large amount of the City's funds, we give the opinion in full, as follows:

The difficulty with the relators' position consists in treating the present Fire Department as an independent corporation, when in fact it is but a mere department of the City Government. The Metropolitan Fire Department, organized under the act of March 20, 1865, was regarded as such an independent corporation sub modo, and the old volunteer Fire Department, which existed prior to that act, was a private corporation. This private corporation, to quote the language of Judge Davies in the People vs. Pinckney, 32 N. Y. R. 377, "was not a municipal or political body, and neither is it now its officers composed any greater official relation to the public, than the officers or managers of the numerous charitable corporations of the State." The object of the charter of 1865 was to create a still independent commission, state and private corporations, and to inaugurate a more symmetrical and harmonious system by repealing the charters of the volunteer bodies of the Municipal Corporation. Thus viewed, the power of creation of the eighty-fourth section of the charter (laws of 1870, chapter 382) seems plain. The Fire Department is declared a body corporate, "all the powers and directed to perform "all the duties" of such Metropolitan Fire Department. Not, however, all such powers and duties as formed part of the plan of independence conferred upon the old commission, but clearly all such as were consistent with the unity of Municipal administration then sought to be effected. The entire charter suggests this construction. The various sections which confer the general power under which the present claim is made; supplement such general power by particularizing the special power enumerated in the sixth section of the act creating the old Commission. In fact, such sixth section is re-enacted almost in totidem verbis. The same remarks apply to the enumeration of powers as to the appointment and removal of subordinates contained in the eighth section of the charter. These are the same powers which were conferred upon the old Commission under the fourteenth section of the act of 1865. If this view of the mortgage implies that general power is construed as though it read: "All the powers of such Metropolitan Fire Department, for the extinguishment of fires, and in the general government, management, and direction of the Department." Every precaution was certainly taken to enumerate such special powers as were considered to have been left in the least doubt by the language of the general law; scarcely so thought, therefore, that the entire scheme of raising and disbursing money for the independent Commission was engrafted upon the charter by the force of such general language. But further, this scheme is not only inconsistent with the spirit of the charter and the judicial decisions now, but also with the practical working. Indeed, it was not claimed that effect could be given to the powers and duties specified in the act of 1865. If transferred to the Commission, under section sixteen, the fund to be raised for the Commission was to be deposited with the Treasurer of the State to the credit of the Commission. Now, the State Treasurer is not the Treasurer of the State a bank to be designated by the Department. Again, the Treasurer of the Commission executed a bond in $50,000, which should be satisfactory to the Comptroller. In the Court to substitute the Mayor of the City, or most the fire Commissioners report to the Comptroller, and to the Court, and to the Legislature under section 31 of the charter? Other inconsistencies might be pointed out, but these are sufficient for the purpose of illustration. What the relators seek, then, is not such a construction of the eighty-fourth section of the charter as would involve merely the transfer of the entire school fire department and disbursement of the funds of the Department, but a construction of the act which would be a modified form of an entirely new and distinct one. It is evident that this is substantially making the Court a party to such another. The Court has the power to call another objection arising upon the face of the charter. The Treasurer was the fiscal officer of the Commission. If he is the fiscal officer of the Fire Department, he is the agent and in the sense claimed, what becomes of the shifty third section of the charter, which provides that "the Finance Department shall have control of all the fiscal concerns of the Corporation, and of the appropriations made for carrying on the business of the Corporation?" We have seen that the fiscal concerns of the department of the Corporation are already the exclusive concern of the Corporation itself. Its creditors, officers and employes are not independent of, but are creditors, officers and employes of the Municipal Corporation, and by such thirty-third section are to be paid in such mode and in such manner as shall be prescribed by such Finance Department; nor is direct enactment wanting to indicate the legislative intent that the Fire Department, in common with all other departments not specially excepted, should be subjected to its proper level as one of the main agencies of the City Government. Under the old system, the Commission itself constitutionally and substantially should be annually raised for and expended by it. Such was the practical effect of sections 16, 11 and 18 of the act of 1865. It is plausible that these are not within any of the powers conferred upon the Finance Department, either by the charter or by any subsequent enactment. On the contrary, the balance of power is placed in the hands of the Fire Department officials, and subsequently the adjustment was left to the Board of Apportionment, in which body the Department had no representative. Finally, there is nothing in the ordinances of the Common Council or Treasurer of the Department to justify the construction contended for by the relators. That officer, under a variety of enactments has been authorized to receive and disburse moneys, of which are quite independent of the general fiscal concerns of the Department, and may be received and performed without clashing in the slightest degree with the duties imposed upon the Finance Department, with respect to these general fiscal concerns, under sections 33, 34, 37, 38 and 39 of the charter.

There is no question, therefore, of the power, either expressly or by implication, of the power now claimed by the Fire Department, for the reason that, viewed in any and every respect, the Court can come to no other conclusion than that such power was never conferred.

The application for a mandamus must, therefore, be denied.

THE RING FRAUDS.

Much Trouble About the Delinquents—Opinions Pro and Con Freely Advanced—The Official Information.

The publication in a morning paper yesterday that Judge Brady would not take bail for Tweed on the two indictments for forgery and misdemeanor which were found against him by the Oyer and Terminer Grand Jury, was without foundation, Judge Brady having intimated to the Sheriff a willingness to receive surety if Mr. Tweed is arrested or surrenders himself. The Sheriff thought until late yesterday afternoon that Tweed would appear before Judge Brady in Oyer and Terminer with his counsel, and said that the erroneous publication above referred to may have had the effect of frightening him off. There is no doubt that Tweed was within a short distance of the City all day yesterday, and in communication with Mr. Foster Dewey, his private Secretary, who was at Tweed's office, in Duane-street, during the day, except when he was closeted with Mr. John Graham.

Late in the afternoon it was agreed by Messrs. Graham and Bartlett, Tweed's counsel, that they will appear in Oyer and Terminer this morning to argue the question of bail. Judge Brady, having adjourned Court early yesterday, waited down town for some time so as to be prepared, it was said, to receive Tweed, should he think fit to allow himself to be arrested.

Sheriff Brennan thinks that Tweed was in this City during Sunday, and that he left town, for Greenwich, Conn., probably on an early train yesterday. Counsel were yesterday very reticent as to the future arrangements to be made with regard to the indictments of either the Mayor, Genet or Fields. Benjamin P. Fairchild, one of the bondsmen in the former arrest of Tweed, expressed a belief that the latter would be forthcoming when wanted, and he, personally, felt not the slightest fear with regard to his own liability on the bond. So far as any new indictments were concerned, he said all that was known by him was merely from common report, but should it prove to be a fact that Tweed was again wanted by the law officers, there is no doubt but that he will voluntarily appear at the proper place when ready, with his bail.

The Oyer and Terminer Grand Jury met at 10 o'clock, and transacted some routine business. Andrew J. Garvey and several witnesses connected with the cases referred to, were in attendance, but were not summoned to give any evidence. The Grand Jury at 12 o'clock adjourned to 10 o'clock at 10 o'clock this morning. After the adjournment, according to a resolution passed some days ago, a visit was paid by the Grand Jury to the institutions under the care of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction on Blackwell's, Ward's, and Randall's Islands. The result of their investigation will be presented to Court. At the District-Attorney's office a TIMES reporter learned that no action whatever had been taken by the Grand Jury in the Ring cases. Concerning Fields and his movements rumor is still busy. It was stated yesterday by a prominent lawyer that Mr. Fields was in town on Sunday. The belief, however, is general that he has left the United States. The statement to the effect that the "Boss" would make his appearance yesterday caused a good deal of excitement in the neighborhood of the Sheriff's office.

A Night Scene on the East River—The Work of River Pirates.

A gang of river thieves boarded the canal-boat E. F. Silliman, lying at the foot of North Eighth-street, Williamsburg, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and, forcing open the forward hatch, took out of the hold $200 worth of new Manila rope, which they lowered into their boat. James McComb, the Captain of the canal-boat, hearing the noise made by the thieves, got up and saw them rowing across to New-York. He crossed by the Houston-street Ferry and informed all the officers he met on South-street of the robbery. At the corner of Lewis and Seventh streets he met Officer Patrick Gisley, of the Eleventh Precinct, and told him of the case. Gisley, knowing that river thieves landed their plunder at the dumping-dock, foot of Rivington-street, called Officer McBride to his assistance and proceeded to the dock. Shortly after they saw the thieves row to the side of the canal-boat John Clark Curzin, and put their plunder on the deck of the canal-boat. The officers called on the thieves to surrender, but the river pirates jumped into their boat and began rowing off. The officers opened fire from their revolvers on the boat, firing six shots. One of the shots, it is thought, took effect, as one of the thieves in the boat screamed out he was killed. All the rope stolen was recovered. The Captain of the Curzin, a man named Elijah H. Weeks, was then arrested for having acted in collusion with the thieves. He was arraigned at Essex Market and held for examination.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

Board of Aldermen.

The Aldermen held their weekly meeting yesterday. The Clerk read a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works calling attention to the practice of posting hand-bills on the public lamp-posts in this City, which is a source of annoyance to the department and to citizens. As there is no authority whereby the Police can prevent this annoyance, the Commissioner begs the Common Council to pass such an ordinance as he inclosed with his communication, which provides for the punishment of the offender. The communication was referred to the Committee on Law.

The Committee on Public Works, to whom was referred the question of rescinding resolutions authorizing the erection of street lamps at the expense of the City for private use and citizens of churches, clubs, theatres, saloons—resolutions not yet acted upon, and the propriety of not issuing further permissions, reported that on the 1st of July, 1872, a resolution was adopted by the Board directing the Commissioner of Public Works to discontinue from that date all lamps lighted for private purposes at the expense of the Corporation; that this resolution was on the 24 July sent to the Board of Assistant Aldermen for concurrence, but that body has not taken action upon it yet. The Committee therefore recommended that the Commissioner's communication and the report of the Committee be sent to the Assistant Aldermen for their action. The Board then adjourned.

Board of Assistant Aldermen—A Variety of Important Matters—The Lamps and Gas—The Old-Slip Trouble—The Hackmen.

At the meeting of the Board of Assistant Aldermen, held yesterday, Assistant Alderman Geis moved:

That the Controller is hereby directed to report to this Board the names of all persons, firms or corporations assessed for personal taxes which taxes remain unpaid, and which have been sent for collection to the Bureau for Collection of Personal Taxes, and report to cover the years 1868, 1869, 1870 and 1871.

Mr. Geis said his motion was intended to open to some extent the operations of that Bureau. He could not state all his reasons, but wanted to know what became of these unpaid accounts. To this motion Assistant Alderman Kram the resolution was referred to the Law Committee.

The Committee on Lamps reported that there are 1,248 lamps in use in front of private dwellings, costing the City $75,484, which they consider an imposition on the tax-payers. They therefore advised that the order to maintain them be rescinded, and wherever the private individual wishes to retain them he must refund the cost to the City. Aldermen Geis and Robinson objected to the measure as too sweeping, and it was referred to the Committee on Roads, the objection being that some of the lamps were maintained before charitable institutions.

Alderman Connor rose to a question of privilege and said he had heard men charged in the newspapers with practicing Tammany tactics. On Tuesday a firm of merchants at No. 7 Old-slip, south of this, had told him they had been unreasonably annoyed by an Inspector from the Bureau of Incumbrances in such an extent that they considered it a persecution, and that the same mover in it was a neighbor who once offered to rent them a store, but that they refused to accede to the offer on the ground that the price was too high; and that while other auctioneers were allowed to sell goods with impunity in Hanover-square the same right was refused to them in Old-slip. He told them he considered that under the ordinances of 1868, Old-slip was an auction mart. The first in question transpired on the following communication:

We, the undersigned, have never seen goods or merchandise for character, for condition or for a period of time, in front of the store of Gerard, Betts & Co. No. 7 Old-slip, that made it an annoyance to their neighbors or the community by which they could be considered a nuisance in any sense whatever.

Wm. Parker & Co., (by J. T. S.,) No. 9 Old-slip; Peter Conover, No. 9 Old-slip; J. Creamer, No. 11 Old-slip; W. W. Kerr, No. 11 Old-slip; J. Columbus, No. 15 Old-slip; A. Bowden, No. 15 Old-slip; J. Arn, No. 15 Old-slip; F. Schecker, No. 15 Old-slip; F. Reed, No. 23 Gliesy; J. Hanssmann, No. 23 Old-slip; T. E. Martin, No. 5 Old-slip; W. Alexander Bass, No. 10 Old-slip; J. H. Evans, No. 8 Old-slip; Richard Jones, No. 9 Old-slip; Geo. Crary, No. 84 Water-street; Henry Pike, No. 86 Water-street; R. R. Flanders, No. 84, Water-street; Samuel Shaw, No. 86 Water-street; M. D. Stem, No. 83 Water-street; W. Hinds & Co., No. 83 Water-street; Galway & Cavallo, No. 104 Front-street; Chas. Galway, No. 104 Front-street; Jas. A. Day, No. 3 Old-slip; Daniel W. Leach, No. 3 Old-slip.

In addition to this, Mr. Connor said three of the names he saw in a paper to the petition against Betts & Co. are actually signed to the declaration which he had just read, declaring that the business was not a nuisance. Gentlemen who petition against the intended amendment of the ordinance themselves occupy the sidewalk every day by backing their carts up to the doors of their places. He merely took up this matter, as he felt bound to do, at the request of a member of the community.

The matter was then dropped, but will be brought on at a future meeting by Mr. Connor.

Among the papers from the Board of Aldermen was a resolution recommending an amendment of the thirty-seventh section of the Hackment Ordinance, so that the hackmen would have the privilege of entering here at the steam-boat wharfs, railroad depots, &c., without clamor or annoyance to the party solicited. As at the last meeting the lobby was filled with hackmen, who, notwithstanding the regulation that applause is disapproved, be not indulged in by the occupants of the lobby, gave expression to their sentiments in a very unmistakable manner, according as the action of the members pleased or displeased them.

By a vote the action of the Board of Aldermen was concurred in. Opposing members say that the passing of the resolution was due in a great measure to the presence of the lobbyists.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday. On motion of Supervisor Plunkitt it was resolved by unanimous consent that while sitting as a Board of County Canvassers the Board occupy the Chamber in the New-York Courthouse formerly occupied by the Board, the same to take effect on the 7th of November.

Among the papers on the Clerk's desk, which were referred to the appropriate committees, was a bill of the proprietors of the Astor House for boarding and lodging the jurors in the Stokes trial. The bill amounts to $1,105.58, and covers the period from June 29 to July 14.

The Committee on Printing was, upon motion, directed to ascertain whether it will be necessary for them to have printed ballots for and against the constitutional amendment to be voted on at the approaching election.

The Board then adjourned.

Ex-Clerk Dempsey's Victim Out of Danger—Released on Bail—A Civil Suit Contemplated.

A consultation was held, yesterday, at the house of Lottie Stanton, who is alleged to have been so brutally assaulted by Joseph Dempsey, the Ex-Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen, and John Jones, during a fracas on the morning of the 11th inst., as already fully reported in the TIMES. There were present at the consultation, Prof. James R. Wood, of Bellevue Hospital, Dr. G. H. Wynkoop, Police Surgeon Steele and Dr. E. T. T. Marsh, Deputy Coroner. The result of the consultation was the signing of the following certificate:

We, the undersigned physicians, having seen Miss Lottie Stanton from time to time since the receipt of her injuries, have been well now, deemed it prudent to certify that she was not in danger of losing her life from said injuries. We are governed entirely by the symptoms of our patient, and today feel warranted in examining her and certificating that unless some unforeseen circumstances should arise she is in no danger of losing her life from the injuries received.

(Signed,) G. H. WYNKOOP, M. D.
THEODILUS STEELE, M. D.
JAMES R. WOOD, M. D.
E. T. T. MARSH, M. D.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 21, 1872.

Armed with this certificate, the friends of Dempsey called on Coroner Young, and demanded that the prisoner should be released on bail. The Coroner acceded to this demand, and Dempsey was brought by Capt. Byrnes, of the Fifteenth Precinct Police, to the Coroner's office. David J. Daly, of Thirty-third-street and First-avenue, and Bryan McKenney, of West Forty-second-street, became sureties in the sum of $5,000 for the appearance of the accused, to answer any indictment that the Grand Jury may find against him, and he was then released. It is asserted that Miss Stanton has given directions to her legal adviser to institute a civil suit against Dempsey for the assault. Jones, the companion of Dempsey, is still at large, though the Police claim to be searching diligently for him.

The importance of securing a good Assembly for the next session of the Legislature cannot be overestimated. The completion of local reforms will largely depend upon it, and we are glad to see that the Republicans are alive to the serious responsibility which rests upon them. In the Eleventh Assembly District, last night, Mr. A. B. CORNELL, at present Chairman of the State Committee, was nominated by acclamation. This is a measure on which the party and the public may fairly be congratulated. Mr. CORNELL is known to everybody in the State as an able and upright man—one who can be thoroughly depended on to struggle for those reforms which the interests of the people demand. He will be proof against all sinister influences. We only wish our side of the Assembly could be exclusively composed of such men. Mr. CORNELL will undoubtedly be elected, and we are confident he will increase, by his course in the Legislature, the respect which his career in public life has already won for him.

A certain JOHN A. GRISWOLD, an Ex-Congressman from Greene County, is stumping the State for the Democratic ticket. We are surprised to learn that some of our friends should have confounded this person with that steadfast and loyal Republican, JOHN A. GRISWOLD, of Troy. The likeness between the two is only in name. The GRISWOLD is now, as ever, one of the ablest, most genial, and most popular of the leaders of the Republican Party in the interior of the State.

The Tribune—struck with sudden remorse for its infamous attacks upon Speaker BLAINE, (whose name it forged to a document) Gen. BARLOW, HENRY CLEWS, Senator WILSON, Mr. DAWES, and other gentlemen—exclaimed yesterday," It is becoming a serious matter how long this unprincipled game of malicious libel shall be allowed to go on." It is, indeed; as the Professor—a professional libeler—and his employers are likely to find out before many months have rolled over their heads. Isn't it beautiful to hear the Professor protesting against "libels," after the scandalous inventions he has recently set on foot about Speaker BLAINE and Attorney-General BARLOW, to take only two instances? As for Mr. S. L. M. BARLOW'S case, wait until it is fully heard. The Tribune howled when we attacked ASTOR, TAYLOR, ROBERTS, & Co., for their whitewashing report—and again when we denounced TWEED & Co. as thieves. These were "libels" in its eyes—but we proved our case. Suppose judgment is deferred on the present issue until all the evidence is in?

The Second Congressional District of Tennessee is the scene of a lively triangular contest between HORACE MAYNARD, Republican, B. F. CHEATHAM, Democrat, and ANDREW JOHNSON, Independent Democrat. Mr. MAYNARD'S majority in 1870 was only 529 on a vote of 15,170, but he has been a member of Congress for many years, and deserves and receives the hearty respect of all parties. As between the two men opposing him, Mr. JOHNSON represents the more loyal section of his present party, CHEATHAM is an Ex-Confederate General, and although personally a man of kindly character and intentions, he is supported in the most violent manner by the extreme Southern and secession element.

The Greeley papers have been raising a great cry of "fraud" over the election in Pennsylvania, but our opponents on the spot have not the face to keep up that pretense. Thus, Col. Forney, (who tried all he knew to defeat our ticket in the recent election,) remarked in his Press yesterday:

"He who lays his filthy fingers on the spotless purity of such a victory for the purpose of converting it to his personal aggrandisement and elevation, is, of course, sooner or later, destined to be struck down in his career of infamy, and his memory clothed with the disgrace with which unerring justice arrays the vile and the dishonest."

There is a warning which Professors, among others, cannot afford to disregard.

The Committee of Seventy has indorsed the nomination of Mr. WILLIAM F. HAVEMEYER for Mayor, of Ex-Judge NOAH DAVIS for the Supreme Court, and of Mr. HOOPER C. VAN VORST for the Superior Court. We understand that Mr. HAVEMEYER'S acceptance of his nomination will be made public today. Now that all sections of Reformers are practically united in regard to the chief local offices to be filled at next election, let us have a vigorous and harmonious canvass. Much work remains to be done, and there is but little time left for doing it.

Keep Working.

Two or three weeks ago, Pennsylvania was the accepted battle-ground of the Greeley faction. The Tribune announced very positively that the State was certain to elect BUCKALEW, which, it said, was equivalent to the vote of the State being cast for GREELEY. "The State is safe now," it said, "and from this day the majority of BUCKALEW will increase." Perhaps if Mr. GREELEY had been managing his own paper during this campaign, he would have ventured on fewer boasts and predictions just before election. In this case, the result of the contest in Pennsylvania completely staggered the Greeleyites. At first they cried "fraud," but they were soon obliged to admit that fraud could not account for a majority of over thirty-five thousand. After holding on to the State as long as they could, and to their explanations of its loss, they were compelled to turn their attention to another quarter. It is New-York which they single out now. They have, in turn, claimed the two States which cast the largest electoral votes—New-York thirty-five, and Pennsylvania twenty-nine—and by reckoning these States as "sure for GREELEY" they contrive to give their famous "tables" an encouraging look. A "fresh look at them" now and then has probably restrained ETHAN ALLEN from sounding the call to arms, and beginning the awful massacre he has threatened in case of GRANT'S re-election.

We all saw how the boasts and predictions of GREELEY'S supporters turned out in reference to Pennsylvania. They are doomed to a still greater disappointment in this State, for they have far less reason for claiming it than they had for claiming Pennsylvania. According to the Tribune, CURTIN, and FORNEY, Gen. HARTRANFT, the Republican candidate for Governor, was a most unpopular man. BUCKALEW could beat him easily. The defection of CURTIN made the thing quite certain. "One blast upon his bugle horn was worth a thousand men," &c. Now, we do not fight against so many difficulties in this State. The Fentonites and Cochranites have forsaken us, and heaven be praised for it. The "Tammany Republicans," so long a reproach to our party, are now avowedly, as they always were actually, under Tammany management. The honest men of the party are on one side—the "scalawags" on the other. The reform bodies in this City are all with us—the interests of every tax-payer prompt him to vote for our candidates. DIX for Governor and HAVEMEYER for Mayor—could anybody suggest safer men for office? Can any one doubt that State and City will be in capable and honest hands if these gentlemen are elected?

The only danger we have to fight against is the apathy arising from excess of confidence. If anything could rouse our friends to renewed exertions it would be the fact that the Tribune, Herald, World, and other organs of the Greeleyites are bidding the rank and file to take fresh courage, because New-York will probably be carried by them. Why give the least excuse for the repetition of such a boast? We should all feel very badly after election if it was found that through carelessness we had saddled ourselves with KERNAN for Governor, with the contingent dangers to our Common Schools, and a Tammany candidate for Mayor. This result is only to be avoided by hard work. Let each Republican determine to do his duty, just as our friends did in this City last year. All is not won while we have a single position left to contest. If you want to see the way in which the Greeleyites are trying to keep their courage up, read the following passage from one of their papers of yesterday:

"The number of electoral votes necessary to choose a President is 184. The old slave States give 128. The election in Georgia tends to show that there is a possibility that all those States, with the exception of South Carolina, which seems to belong to GRANT'S man MOSES, may, under certain contingencies, go for Dr. GREELEY in November. Leaving South Carolina out of the list, those States would give him 181 votes, which is only 3 short of the number required to elect him. Assuming, for the purpose of this calculation, that Dr. GREELEY will obtain these 181 Southern votes, where in the North can he get the other 3? votes? New-York casts 35, Indiana 15, and Nevada 3, amounting to the precise number required. Besides these, there are New-Hampshire, Connecticut, New-Jersey, Wisconsin, California and Oregon to draw upon."

Now all this is very absurd, but instead of laughing at it now, let us save it for a little harmless amusement after election; and, in the meantime, go to work to demonstrate the folly of GREELEY and his friends in claiming New-York. Let us not rest until after the 5th of November.

The Court of Appeals Amendment.

There is one question to be decided at the ensuing election in this State on which all sensible men of both parties should vote alike. It is the question of the adoption of a constitutional amendment submitted by the Legislature, last Winter, authorizing the extension of the term of the Commission of Appeals two years. The necessity for this amendment arises as follows:

The Commission of Appeals were authorized to take up and decide all causes on the calendar of the old Court of Appeals up to January, 1869; all subsequent appeals went to the new Court, which, it was expected, would sit immediately. Delay occurred, and the new Court was not organized till July, 1870, and then found five hundred causes on its calendar. The result is that these last two years have not enabled the new Court to clear its calendar, and all appeals are two years behind. The amendment to the Constitution authorizes the Commission of Appeals to sit for two years longer, (its present term being only three years,) for the purpose of disposing of the accumulated causes.

No one can, so far as we can see, be opposed to this simple measure for facilitating the administration of justice. Its effect, direct and indirect, will be very great and beneficial. We hope that the Bar throughout the State will give personal attention to this matter. If that is done, the amendment will unquestionably be adopted, as it ought to be.

The Local Contest.

The dread which the Tammany organs entertain in regard to the strength of Mr. HAVEMEYER'S candidacy for the Mayoralty is pretty well illustrated by the ridiculous efforts they are making to convince the people that he is not really a candidate at all. Before his nomination, the Tribune showed its marvelous ignorance of local affairs by boldly asserting that Mr. HAVEMEYER was the candidate, of all others, best fitted to serve as a "dummy" to help to run in Senator O'BRIEN. Since his nomination, it appears to entertain some misgivings on this score, and begins to discount the possibility of his being "run in earnest." The likelihood of such an event excites its compassion on behalf of Mr. O'BRIEN. It expresses, accordingly, a maudlin kind of concern lest the man whom it has foully libeled for weeks in succession should prove to have been "used and betrayed." After calling a man a "thief," a "jail-bird," a "convict," and other names of equally pleasant odor, the sympathy of the Tribune on his behalf cannot fail to be fully appreciated. As we have said before, our objections to Mr. O'BRIEN'S candidacy rest on wholly different grounds from those covered by the slanders of the organ. As a State Senator, Mr. O'BRIEN certainly kept better faith with the party of reform than that eminent Greeleyite, ALVORD, or that quondam member of the same gang, JAMES W. HUSTED. If the Tribune expects that all those who do not believe its reckless libels against Senator O'BRIEN must necessarily vote for him, it will be rudely undeceived on the evening of Nov. 5.

It is a very excellent joke to hear the name of Sheriff BRENNAN trumpeted forth as a champion of Reform. We believe BRENNAN and the set who procured the nomination of Mr. LAWRENCE to be in the man most improper men to govern this City. Anybody who supposes that they would place a candidate in the field, pledged to a programme of uncompromising reform, must, perforce, presume them to be fools. We have nothing to say against the personal character or antecedents of Mr. LAWRENCE. The fact of his being found in exceedingly bad company is a very sufficient reason for all honest men opposing him. Sheriff BRENNAN has illegal claims against the City for salaries of his clerks and deputies, amounting to at least fifty thousand dollars. Can any man in his senses suppose that he is working with all his might in favor of a candidate for Mayor who will not help him to place a more pliant official in the Controller's office than the one who has refused to honor his illegal requisitions? Sheriff BRENNAN is working to obtain, among other things, the twelve months' arrears of salaries which the public has no right to pay, and to secure for the future any diminution of his very fat fees under this head. The citizens of New-York can help him to this little piece of spoliation by voting for Mr. LAWRENCE.

Let the people of this City remember that the approaching local contest places them once more on their trial before the Union and before the world. The corruptions which were suffered to go on unchecked in our municipal administration were a scandal not only to the City, but to the cause of republican government everywhere. We were only half vindicated by the popular uprising of last Fall. Unless we show the vigor and firmness required to follow up the advantage which was then gained, the reform element in the City will be shown to be a merely spasmodic farce, which knaves can easily defy if they only give it time to exhaust itself. The City would never have had thirty millions of stolen or wasted money added to its debt, and another thirty millions filched from its taxation, but for the apathy of its "respectable" voters. Once let apathy be allowed to reassume its sway, and the revival of the reign of plunder and misrule is but a question of months. And the next time that we enter on this descending scale of local administration, the consequences will be far more fatal and difficult of correction than before, in virtue of the utter hopelessness which will come over the minds of all good men as to the possibility of maintaining the cause of public honesty for more than twelve months consecutively. The verdict of all outside observers will, moreover, be "New-York deserves to be robbed."

"Sweetness and Light."

To try to make Mr. HORACE GREELEY absurd is surely like gilding refined gold, and painting the lily. Yet here is Mr. JAMES M. SCOVEL, of New-Jersey, doing it up in such splendid shape that it is hard to tell which cuts the most absurd figure—himself or GREELEY. Mr. SCOVEL, in an evil hour, has been tempted to pen an appeal in behalf of the "Sage" to the people of New-Jersey; and all we can say is that a few more such "appeals" should cut the supporters of the "Sage" down to a corporal's guard. Either from a total lack of the sense of humor, or from that Mephistopheleian spirit which is said to animate the soul of the editor of the Sun, Mr. SCOVEL has put his foot in it, so far as his client's interests are concerned, with a vengeance. Setting out with the statement that "this is not the time for words," he proceeds to deluge the people of New-Jersey with a torrent of what, if not pure burlesque, is simply drivel; and if we dismiss the former conjecture, we should say that, if any hand but the "Professor's" could have written the last ineffably funny Tribune "Prospectus," it must have been that of Mr. JAMES M. SCOVEL.

It was on last Saturday afternoon that Mr. SCOVEL put forth his amazing manifesto, and we take the earliest opportunity to do it justice. By it we are instructed—on the strength, no doubt, of late events in Pennsylvania and Ohio—that Mr. GREELEY is straightway to smash Gen. GRANT and the Republican Party, "at the head of a Grand Army of the Young Men of the Nation, and of old men, as well, who have never bent the knee to Baal in politics;" the antagonism to "Baal" being typified, of course, by a leader who rats to get office, and makes hole-and-corner bargains with his life-long foes to revenge himself on his life-long, but unappreciative, friends. The "Baal" haters are likewise to be assisted, we find, by "high-minded men who believe, and believing who fear, that the Spirit of Party animated and kept alive by the Spirit of Faction, if not scourged to the Death, will soon become too powerful for the People and too strong for the Spirit of Nationality, which never seeks Power to use it for base ends, but asks that Power, at all times and everywhere, may be so guided and guarded by pure law that a divided and suffering People—once more homogeneous—by a bland assimilation (again a reconciled Nation) may become great and prosperous and happy."

—If that sentence does not gain Mr. SCOVEL immortality, the world is all vanity and vexation, and modest merit goes for naught. So tasteful a Conglomeration of Homogeneous Assimilation, if used as a cudgel, ought to make the Spirit of Faction and the Spirit of Party dance a wild pas de fascination over the grave of Dr. JOHNSON. But the luminary of New-Jersey is so far only at the beginning of his richness. His felicitous comparison of Gen. GRANT with Lord BACON—which is almost as good as to compare GREELEY with SOCRATES, or SCOVEL with ADDISON—will attract much admiration; a stroke far superior, however, he keeps in reserve. "The greatest is behind." If any one can read the choice passage that follows without roars of laughter, its must be such arch humorists as AUGUST BELMONT or AUGUSTUS SCHELL. Read and enjoy: "In HORACE GREELEY we present to the American people a statesman who would scorn to do a mean act or to consummate a wrong to make himself President. He represents no ways that are dark. HORACE GREELEY represents sincerity in statesmanship, and in character what MATTHEW ARNOLD calls 'sweetness and light.' He is sunshine and strength, with an eye like Apollo, that 'lends brightness, and never yet knew shadow.'"

Who shall say that there is no fun left in the world, while GREELEY still lives in it and has for panegyrist a SCOVEL, and for organ grinder a "Professor of Journalism?" The "sage," as the representative of "sweetness and light" is enough to make one laugh as a funeral. Observe him, too, as "Apollo," clad in "sunshine and strength," and petrifying some lovely Acantha with the awful splendor of his regards! Mr. SCOVEL must have been reading his SWINBURNE lately, e. g.:

"Yea, is not even Apollo, with hair and harp-string of gold,
A bitter god to follow, a beautiful god to behold?"

We imagine that SCOVEL and his friends will find GREELEY a sufficiently bitter god to follow before they get through with him, and that this application of the line will not be ironical, however the latter part of it may be. But the imagination that can picture GREELEY in seriousness as the embodiment of "sweetness and light" is positively remarkable as a psychological study. That a man notoriously bigoted and prejudiced, for forty years opposed to the most salaried corrections of political economy and of the relations of peoples and governments, a man to whom high and liberal culture is distasteful, if not abhorrent, and who can be proved, by every rule of logic and record of facts, to have been and to be a man of expedients and not of principles—to couple such an one with MATTHEW ARNOLD'S famous words is either burlesque or child's play. And as we do not find elsewhere in Mr. SCOVEL'S compositions traces of the particular form of genius which leads a SHERIDAN to serve up his friends, CUMBERLAND and WOODFALL, as Sir Fretful Plagiary and Mr. Snear, the conclusion is less favorable to Mr. SCOVEL'S intellectual calibre than could be wished.

For all this we must own that Mr. SCOVEL has a right to his own notions of "sweetness and light," and a right to people his Olympus at his own sweet will. Anyhow, there is only a fortnight left to do it in, and that we will not begrudge him. So, with GREELEY for Apollo, and GRATZ BROWN, we suppose, for Bacchus; with DANA, shall we say, as Jupiter, and SCOVEL to forge his (Jersey) lightning; with the editor of the World for Mercury, BELMONT for Cupid, and SCHELL for Mars, the Greeleyites may revel in their new Olympus until the 5th of November; after which we promise them quite as much "sweetness and light" as their nerves will at that date be in a condition to stand.

An Important Decision.

Judge BARRETT'S decision on the application for a mandamus by the Fire Commissioners against the Controller is an important advance in the great movement of local reform. Following the example of the Commissions which were in force prior to the enactment of the charter of 1870, several of the City Departments, including the Fire Department, assumed the exclusive power over the appropriations set apart for their use, and the sole right to audit and settle all claims against the City to be paid from such appropriations. When CONNOLLY was Controller, he tacitly sanctioned this usurpation, thereby reducing the Finance Department to be a mere instrument to provide funds to be disposed of as the various departments thought proper. The result was that each department had a staff of retainers on their pay-rolls, specially charged with the financial duties of the Department.

Controller GREEN, shortly after entering upon his present office, objected to this system of administration and the heavy expenses it imposed upon the City. In order to bring about the necessary reform, a test case was made as to the Fire Department. Mr. O'GORMAN, the Counsel to the Corporation, in a lengthy opinion which he furnished to the Fire Department, supported the claims of the Commissioners, but the Controller declined to be guided by this opinion. The Fire Commissioners thereupon applied for a mandamus, to compel him to deposit the funds appropriated for the Department to the credit of the Commissioners in the bank designated by them. The matter was fully argued before Judge BARRETT, who has given judgment sustaining the Controller, the effect of which will be that all bills incurred by the Departments must be presented to the Controller, who alone has the power to audit, adjust, and settle them. This decision will give to the citizens of New-York an additional feeling of security, as it insures an honest administration in matters from which strict official investigation has been too long excluded.

Privileged Murder.

The horrible travesty of justice which resulted in the acquittal of Mrs. FAIR has already begun to bear its legitimate fruits. The rash attack made by young CRITTENDEN upon his father's assassin, as we find it described in the San Francisco papers, was an error which the young man's family and friends have every reason to deplore. Whether his intention was to kill the woman, or only to frighten her from the city, the attempt must be unequivocally condemned by every right judgment. Public opinion in San Francisco, we are fain to believe, must speedily drive Mrs. FAIR into an exile which civilized society everywhere should be willing to confirm and continue. That justice which the law sometimes denies, the universal contempt and abhorrence of mankind often replaces, and young CRITTENDEN only wrongs his own desire for vengeance by an act which gives the murderess a plausible excuse for assuming the rôle of the martyr.

But, having thus expressed our entire disapproval of Mr. CRITTENDEN'S course, we may be permitted to repeat that it was but the natural outcome of the events which preceded it. The maddening sense of outrage, the frenzy of despair and humiliation, which must possess a man who sees his father brutally shot down in cold blood, and the murderess tranquilly exonerated by a jury of her countrymen, hardly any effort of imagination will help one to realize without actual experience. Such verdicts as this which has just disgraced San Francisco, and which has many no less disgraceful precedents, must necessarily cause men to forget that distinction of sex which such women as Mrs. FAIR remember only when they need it as the shield of most unwomanly crimes. If women resort to the weapons of men, they must expect to be met with men's weapons; if they deliberately unsex themselves, it is hard to see on what score they can any longer claim consideration by reason of their sex. And if juries persist in holding forth to women this virtual immunity of murder, there can be but one issue from the violence of human passions. If young CRITTENDEN should kill Mrs. FAIR for killing his father, the jury that acquitted her might very possibly hang him. Public sentiment might even assent to the punishment, but it would be with a conscious shock. And the next man who, under similar circumstances, shot the next woman would probably not be hanged at all; in other words, we should revert to a primitive condition of social anarchy.

To escape this inevitable and logical result two things are necessary; first, such a general reform of our jury system as shall make intelligence and not ignorance the essential qualification of a juror; second, a resolute and final declaration of public opinion against any recognition of sex in crime. A woman murderer, convicted after a fair trial, must be regarded and treated precisely as a man in the same condition; the fact that she is a woman must in no case blind her judges to the fact that she is a murderer, or avail so much as a feather's weight to preserve her from the full sentence of the law. And if to hang women be repugnant to the spirit of modern civilization, as seems clearly to be the case, let that fact also be recognized on the statute-books, but let a suitable penalty be substituted and impartially enforced. No law is better than a law habitually overridden; no class is so dangerous to the public welfare as a class which feels itself to be privileged for evil. Neither that indulgent gallantry which is a part of social education, nor that deeper feeling of reverence for womanhood inherent in the blood of Northern races, must blind us to the truth that women can and do commit the most atrocious crimes, and that bad women are even more dangerous, as they are more revolting, than bad men. Until we give earnest and practical enforcement of this truth in our murder trials, our laws against homicide might as well, so far as real justice is concerned, be repealed at once.

MINOR TOPICS.

Latest reports from Pennsylvania fully confirm the view we took pending the October elections, that many thousand voters, both Republican and Democratic, will sustain President GRANT in November who did not vote for HARTRANFT. That State bids fair to roll up a perfectly unprecedented majority in November. Let New-York see to it that her own vote is as fully and fairly brought out.

The fact that but a few more days are left for the manufacture of Democratic campaign fiction makes it pretty certain that the falsehoods exposed by Gen. SCHENCK, (see our Washington dispatches,) are among the last with which the public will be afflicted. They are certainly among the most offensive, which is, perhaps, one reason why their authors have confined them, as far as possible, to the rural districts. But it is a poor compliment to American farmers, after all, to offer them such palpable and preposterous inventions. We venture to say that no man will believe that six hundred millions have been stolen from the United States Treasury, except one who has been voting the Democratic ticket "blind" for at least ten years. As these men might be counted on to vote it this year, these particular lies would seem to have been wasted.

Joint debates, after the old Southern fashion, are being held by the candidates for Congress in ANDREW JOHNSON'S district in Tennessee. One recently took place in a grove, where the followers of the rebel Gen. CHEATHAM mounted in the trees about the stand and pelted Mr. JOHNSON with harmless but annoying missiles, while enlivening his discourse with those spirited interruptions that became so familiar to the country by the reports of the famous speeches from the White House steps. It revives something of one's respect for the ex-President so find that he is now persecuted mainly by the Confederate roughs, "lewd fellows of the baser sort," who twit him with "deserting" the rebel cause and "conspiring with the North." It makes one remember the day when Mr. JOHNSON took the bold stand for the Union which made him the nominee of the Union Party for Vice-President with Mr. LINCOLN, and endeared him at the time to that noble man and to the country as well.

The Express continues true to its practice of hashing up extracts from disreputable journals and calling them the "Spirit of the Press." Yesterday it gave prominence to the opinions of a Sunday newspaper, whose filthy contents are a disgrace to journalism, in regard to the increase of the City debt. The impudence with which that journal abetted and participated in the worst corruptions of the Ring, and ascribes the increase of local burdens to the Reformers, is only equaled by that of the journal which reproduces such an opinion, while it consistently suppresses the evidence both of the stealings of Tammany, and of the plans of the men who are laboring to have Tammany reinstated.

The canoe regatta of last Saturday will undoubtedly give a new impulse to canoeing in this country. Though, owing to unforeseen accidents, but four canoes, instead of nine, entered for the race, the splendid sailing qualities shown by those which did take part in it have demonstrated both the speed and staunchness of the miniature yachts. Those who witnessed the regatta must not imagine that cruising in a canoe is the same thing as racing. The canoes that spread such a disproportionate amount of canvas in comparison with their size, on Saturday last, are much more modestly rigged when in their cruising dress. As the main end of the canoe is to cruise, its fitness for that purpose must not be judged from its appearance when in racing trim; and although one or two of the racing canoes capsized after the race was over, there would have been no reason for such an accident had they been rigged with cruising spars and sails.

When, early in the century, the Prussian army overran Champagne, the CLICQUOTS, in common with others in their line of life, suffered pretty considerably in their cellars. In the end, however, good came out of evil, for the foe went away with so agreeable a recollection of their libations, that champagne rose immeasurably in popularity in Germany, and an immensely increased demand was the consequence. Possibly a similar course of events has led to an increased consumption of what is now German beer. By a recent statement it appears that the quantity sent from Alsace during the past six months has been enormous. The French ordinarily move about but little, and very likely thousands in the parts remote from Strasbourg never knew the excellence of its brew until that city was about to cease to be a part of their own country. The new rate of duties between Alsace and France commenced in July, and the next returns will be very eagerly scanned to see whether with the high tariff imposed there will still be an active demand for Alsacian produce.

If there is one crime more hideous than any other it is that of the wretch who places obstructions on the railway track, in order to wreck trains laden with passengers. And yet it is one which is perpetrated in this country with great frequency, and hitherto with almost invariable impunity. In no case has the perpetrator met with anything like the punishment which he deserved. It is strange that the miscreants who, either for plunder or revenge, thus try to compass the horrible death of scores of men and women, should not be discovered, arrested and promptly punished. Even the most ordinary enterprise on the part of the officers of the law ought to be able to arrest the criminals, and if there is no law which would give them to the gallows, such a law should be passed at once. The recent attempt to wreck a train near Paterson, N. J., came very near being successful, but we do not learn that there is any probability of the discovery and arrest of the guilty persons.

The personal organ of Mr. GREELEY seems to think that the most crushing attack it can make upon any public man is to assert that he is in partnership with TWEED. If the unsupported and baseless statement of such a conjecture be considered damaging, what must be the undeniable and well-substantiated proof of a business partnership with the boss thief of modern times? The Tribune's conclusion has already found out to his sore what the people think of a man who preaches reform and practices business association with rascals. Does the organ suppose that people will forget Mr. GREELEY'S connection with the tobacco concern, by trying to connect men with TWEED who are working to get him sent to the State's Prison?

OBITUARY.

Jean-Henri Merle D'Aubigne.

A cable telegram from Geneva, Switzerland, states that Rev. Jean-Henri Merle D'Aubigne, the celebrated historian of the Reformation, died suddenly yesterday in that city. Jean-Henri Merle D'Aubigne was born in Geneva Aug. 16, 1794. After completing his education in the University of his native city, he went to Berlin, where he attended Neander's lectures on Church History. In 1817 he was ordained, and was pastor of a French church in Hamburg for several years, and for a long period occupied a similar position in Brussels, being the favorite court preacher of the late King of Holland, who often attended in that city. During the Summer of 1830 M. D'Aubigne returned to Geneva, and when the new theological school was founded by the Evangelical Society, he was appointed Professor of Church History. His first contribution to literature was a volume of sermons. The work by which he was known by so readers in this country, however, were his History of the Reformation in the Sixteenth Century, and The Lord Protector, or the English Republic in the Days of Cromwell. He wrote many other historical volumes, though few of them were translated.

Admiral Sir T. J. Cochrane, G. C. B.

The death of this British officer is announced to have occurred at his residence, in London, on Sunday night. Thomas John Cochrane was the eldest son of Admiral Sir Alexander F. I. Cochrane, who died in Paris in 1832, and grandson of the eighth Earl of Dundonald. He entered the British Navy at an early age, and took part in the expeditions against Belle-Isle, Ferroll and Cadiz, and had attained the grade of Captain when he was engaged in the American campaign of 1814, under his father. From 1826 to 1834 he was Governor of Newfoundland, and from 1837 to 1841 he represented Ipswich in the House of Commons. From 1843 to 1848 he commanded the East Indian Naval Station and operated successfully against the Malay pirates, capturing the capital of the Sultan of Borneo. He became Vice-Admiral in 1851, and in 1860 Admiral of the Fleet.

John P. Brace.

By the death of John P. Brace, in Litchfield, Conn., on the 18th inst., that State loses a man who did much for her educational system.

Mr. Brace's acquirements were vast and multifarious. He was fitted thoroughly in the studies of the three professions—law, medicine and theology—and could have entered any one with honor. His knowledge of ancient and modern history was both wide and minute. In mineralogy he had made extensive researches and collections. But his great talent and his services were in the comparatively unknown, but most useful, field of teacher.

So busy was his useful life that he never wrote any scientific or scholastic work, such as he easily might, but left his record and work in the minds and lives of thousands whom he educated, and who still love his memory. He was first teacher of the famous Academy of Litchfield, for to many years the leading educational institution for young ladies in New-England. In 1836 he became Principal of the Hartford Female Seminary, which, under his guidance, became equally celebrated. In these two institutions Mr. Brace trained many young ladies who have since become well known. Among these are Mrs. H. B. Stowe, Mrs. Isabella B. Hooker, Mrs. Cyrus W. Field, Mrs. Cornelius Du Bois, of New-York; Mrs. Wilson, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts, and others. Mr. Brace was the editor of the Hartford Courant. For the past nine years he has been living in quiet and comfort on the old homestead in the village of Litchfield. The only original literary works that Mr. J. P. Brace left behind him were monographs on scientific subjects, and a few poems and works of fiction. His first wife was from a family well known in Maine for talent and character, Miss Lucy Porter, sister of Mrs. Dr. Lyman Beecher, and descendant of the Hon. Rufus King. By this marriage, surviving children are C. L. Brace, J. P. Brace, Jr., and Mrs. J. W. Skinner. He married again—Miss Louisa Morgan, of Hartford. He was also connected, through his sister, with the Hon. Charles G. Loring, the late distinguished lawyer of Boston.

GREELEY AS A LOBBYIST.

Another Statement of the Facts of the Case by Ex-Congressman Flagler, and a Letter from Ex-Gov. Morgan.

The Poughkeepsie Eagle of yesterday substantiates its accusation against Horace Greeley of attempting to influence the giving of a contract for binding by the Printing Committee of the National House of Representatives, by a second letter from Hon. T. T. Flagler, of Niagara County. The letter is as follows:

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 17, 1872.

John I. Platt, Esq., Editor Poughkeepsie Eagle:

During your visit to this city several weeks ago, we met by invitation at the residence of a mutual friend. In the course of the miscellaneous conversation of that social interview, the subject of politics was discussed, and I related a circumstance in my Congressional service, which, as I told you, largely influenced my opinion of the personal character of one of the Presidential candidates. The circumstance was that while the question of a disposal of the binding of the House was under the pending Printing Committee of which I was a member, Horace Greeley called upon me at my room and proposed that the contract should be given to Cornelius Wendell, who, he distinctly said, would pay $12,000 for it, and that by way of inducement he referably with the offer, he added, that the money could or would be useful for election purposes. This statement you soon after published in the Eagle from recollection, with errors you have corrected in a subsequent issue of your paper. The truthfulness of my statement is denied in a recent number of the New-York Tribune, as authorized by Mr. Greeley himself. The publication of my conversational statement was made without my knowledge, expectation or consent. The literal and exact truth of it, however, I and responsible for, and I hereby distinctly reiterate it in the face of the coarse and characteristic denial which has been interposed in behalf of the Presidential candidate. I do not alter or abate one jot or tittle of it, either to screen him or injure him. He may have forgotten the circumstance, but I have not, for it was well calculated to impress itself indelibly upon my mind, and there are members of my Congressional associates who will recollect my relation of the incident immediately after its occurrence, and who will also remember that I indignantly denounced the act of Mr. Greeley then, as I denounce it now.

You are authorized to publish this communication. T. T. FLAGLER.

The Eagle also publishes the following letter from Hon. Edwin B. Morgan:

AURORA, Oct. 17, 1872.

Editor of the Poughkeepsie Eagle:

I have just received your note of the 15th inst., requesting me to state my recollections in relation to a charge made by Mr. Thomas T. Flagler, of Lockport, against Mr. Horace Greeley. In the early part of the session of the Thirty-fourth Congress, Mr. Flagler informed Gov. Washburne, of Maine, myself, and other members of Congress from this State, that Mr. Greeley had just left his room at Willard's Hotel, where he had made to him an insulting proposition. That he, Greeley, offered Flagler, (who was a member of the Printing Committee, $12,000 if he would cause the binding contract to be awarded to Cornelius Wendell. An animated and indignant discussion was had upon the occasion, and each gentleman present agreed with Mr. Flagler that the proposition was an insult. I observe the Tribune denies the statement. There is no gentleman in the State who sustains a more enviable character for intelligence, veracity and great moral worth than Thomas T. Flagler, and what motive he then could have had to mislead his fellow-members, when we were all the friends of Mr. Greeley, I cannot conceive. Very respectfully, EDWIN B. MORGAN.

The South Carolina Congressmen all Republicans.

The first telegrams from South Carolina claimed that the "Conservatives" had elected Ex-Gov. B. F. Perry to Congress from the First District of that State, and thus the matter has been allowed to rest. It now appears that the statement was not true, and that he has been defeated. The Columbia Union of Saturday says that there is no doubt that Hon. A. S. Wallace, the regular Republican candidate, has been re-elected by a majority of at least 1,800 votes. It says: "Perry makes no perceptible gain over the regular Democratic vote of 1870, while Wallace, in Chester, has probably added 500 to his majority of two years ago, and in Fairfield he has doubtless run even with his ticket. York will give him not less than 400 or 500 majority, and probably more, so that he would cross Broad River with nearly 4,000 majority. Mr. Perry cannot possibly overcome this majority in the

From Our Own Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Thursday, Oct. 17, 1872.

The brilliant campaigns in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana have beyond question carried Missouri for the Republicans. This assertion is based on a careful examination of the State made by your correspondent during a tour which embraced nearly forty counties, and in which all of the multifarious agencies which have so complicated affairs here are represented. Stated in general, the Democracy from the outset has been apathetic and divided, while the Republicans have been united and enthusiastic. The Democrats are divided into three classes—those who urged the support of Mr. Greeley, those who opposed his nomination at Baltimore and the enfranchised ex-confederates. The ex-rebels have been acting throughout the canvass with either of the other classes, as their strength in various localities gave them encouragement. The result of last Tuesday's elections has embittered the Greeleyites and straight-outs against each other, each charging on the other the responsibility for the defeat. And now the Confederate element is having a voice in the recriminations, the fighting men for the most part siding with the straight-outs, and the stay-at-home rebels with the Liberal Democrats. As the straight-outs are probably more numerous here than anywhere else in the country, and as not less than fifty thousand newly-enfranchized voters will appear at the polls for the first time this Fall, it will be seen that this disaffection is a matter of very decided consequence to the Democratic Party. In several parts of the State it has resulted in unlooked for nominations by bolters from the regular ticket, while in localities where no open expression of this kind has been made, the presence of a strong anti-Greeley feeling is recognized. In the Fourth Congressional District, for instance, an independent candidate is in the field, and from present appearances it is probable that he will, at least, make a very close and exciting race with the regular nominee. This district embraces all of the south-eastern part of the State, in which are the counties of Stoddard, Mississippi, Madison, Reynolds, and others, in which Kuklux outrages were committed three or four months ago. Owing to the intimidation of negroes and the insults to the whites, the Republican vote will be comparatively small, so small, in fact, that it has been deemed inexpedient to make a nomination for Congressman. The Republicans are supporting the independent candidate. Major Ward, of Charleston, Mississippi County. He is a straight-out Democrat and an earnest supporter of the Administration. His entire influence will be cast in that direction, and it is far from inconsiderable. In the Twelfth District, occupying the north-eastern part of the State, there are no less than three Democratic candidates, two of whom are straight-out Democrats, one a supporter of Gen. Grant and the other of the Louisville movement. In the central and western part of the State, where the Democrats are calculating on a very large majority, the anti-Greeley feeling has no open expression, but prevails nevertheless. In one township in Lafayette County there is an organization of his anti-Greely, anti-Grant Democrats. From these evidences, it is within the bounds of strong probability that Grant will carry the State by an least ten thousand majority.

The prospect for the State ticket is equally encouraging. Ex Senator John B. Henderson, the Republican candidate for Governor, is making a peculiarly brilliant canvass. He is accompanied by Hon. Jeff. Chandler, the candidate for Attorney-General, who, although a young man, is an eloquent speaker and one of the ablest lawyers in the State. Mr. Henderson requested Mr. Woodson, the Democratic candidate for Governor, to make the canvass with him, but the latter refused. The appointments of these gentlemen have covered nearly the same territory, Mr. Henderson following a week or ten days behind Mr. Woodson. Your correspondent has heard both candidates at several points, and everywhere a marked difference has been apparent in the meetings. Mr. Woodson's audiences have been small and unsympathetic, and in several instances there were so few in attendance that the meetings were abandoned. Senator Blair, whose term expires next Spring, and who is endeavoring to procure his re-election, started out with Woodson, and for the past week has been filling the appointments alone, his colleague having abandoned the canvass under a pretext of a bad cold, but really, it is asserted in Democratic circles, on account of the discouraging receptions that were everywhere given him.

Mr. Henderson is personally one of the most popular men in the State. His nomination by acclamation in the Convention is proof of the attachment of his own party to him. He has strong Democratic strength on account of his prominence in Democratic ranks prior to 1861, and his independent course during the eight years he served in the United States Senate. He was among the first to urge the enfranchisement of the rebels in this State, and this circumstance has apparently not been forgotten by the enfranchised. At all of his appointments Democrats have formed a large part of his audiences, and hundreds of prominent men in that party have pledged him their personal support and influence. Mr. Woodson, on the other hand, was hardly known, prior to his nomination, outside of Buchanan County, in which he has resided for years. He was among the loudest grumblers against the Government at the commencement of the war, but afterwards commanded, for a short time, a Regiment of militia in the Union service. In 1864 he tried to get admittance as a delegate to the Baltimore Convention to nominate Mr. Lincoln, and failing in this, supported the McClellan ticket. His vacillating course has not secured him the hearty support of any one of the three classes above enumerated, into which the Democracy is divided. To add to his unpopularity are certain charges against him of receiving a fee of $20,000 for procuring the issue, "legally or otherwise," of $400,000 of the bonds of Buchanan County for the St. Louis and St. Joseph Railroad. It is alleged that the issue was procured illegally, and that for the year in which he made the transaction and received the $20,000 fee, he returned an income to the United States Assessor of only $2,000. These charges were made so positively that the Democratic General Committee felt called upon to demand an answer in refutation from Mr. Woodson. He made the answer, but it was so weak an evasion of the allegations, that even the Democratic Press apologized for it to the public. Owing to these peculiar circumstances it is claimed by Mr. Henderson's friends that he will run from 10,000 to 15,000 votes ahead of his ticket. If he does, and every indication seems to promise it, he will be elected by a very large majority.

There is ground for still further encouragement in this State. While it has seemed probable from the outset that the Republicans would be defeated for Grant and Henderson, the most sanguine have hardly hoped that the Legislature would be Republican. This is now almost an assured fact, and it is all the more gratifying as Missouri elects this year a Senator in place of Frank Blair. Upon the returns received from straight count of the counties the Democrats would in all probability have a majority of from 8 to 12. In over twenty counties, however, from two to four independent Democratic candidates are in the field, and the strength of the party is thus equally divided between them. These divisions and "holes" are the results, in these instances, of an overwhelming Democratic majority; and in states, by far the larger number, of the disloyal spirit established in the rebellion. In Cass, Newton, Jasper, Clay, and other counties the regular Democratic ticket is composed almost entirely of the names of those who were active participants in the rebellion or its open sympathizers. This has awakened and alarmed the Union Democrats to such a degree that they have coalesced with the Republicans, and a "people's" or independent ticket is the result. In the majority of cases the Republicans in the coalition have secured the representatives; in others they have made a pledge from the candidate for that office that he will support the Republican candidate for the Senate, the only condition upon which they yield their support. This assures, almost beyond question, the return of a Republican Senator in place of the Democrat who was elected through the treachery of Gov. B. Gratz Brown.

Steam-Boat Whistles—A Nice Legal Question.

From the Wheeling (W. Va.) Register, Oct. 12.

The Wharf-master, Joseph Forsyth, had brought suit against the Captain of the steamboat McCormick, for a violation of the ordinance which forbids the blowing of steam-boat whistles at the wharf. A law of Congress compels every boat to try her whistle before starting on a voyage, that the pilot may be sure that it is in good order, and under this law steam-boatmen have taken a good deal of latitude, claiming that they are bound by the act of Congress, and not by the city ordinances in this particular. The Wharf-master takes the ground that there is a good deal of difference between "trying" a whistle and "blowing" it, and that if the pilot of the McCormick did more than "try" the whistle, he is liable under the ordinance.

CONNECTICUT.

The Contest for Congressman in the Hartford District—Review of the Democratic Candidate's Record.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 18, 1872.

The nomination of Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, in this district, as a candidate of the Republicans to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Strong, together with the nomination of William W. Eaton, by the Democrats, for the same position, gives additional zest to the campaign in this part of the State, and to a considerable extent the results will be watched with interest outside of Connecticut. The political character of the district is shown somewhat in the following:

The vote of the whole district for Governor last Spring was as follows:

	Jewell.	Hall'd.	Ch'ns.	Lab'r.	Scat.
Hartford County	9,363	9,363	767	153	7
Tolland County	2,646	2,000	81	4	0
Total	12,009	11,363	848	161	7

Jewell over Hubbard, 646; Jewell over all, 801. Liberal Gov. Tyler had 848 scattering votes all.

The vote of the district for Congressman in 1871 was as follows:

	Dem. Strong.	Dem. Goodrich.
Hartford County	9,744	9,436
Tolland County	2,289	1,997
Total	11,033	11,736

Majority for Strong, 347.

Most of your readers are familiar with the name of Gen. Hawley. There is no more pronounced Republican, nor one whose record will bear closer inspection, in the whole country. The first meeting to organize the party in Connecticut was held in his law office in Hartford. Subsequently, so great was his devotion to the principles of the party, he abandoned the profession of law and became the editor of the Evening Press, which was established to represent the advanced views of men like himself. In that position he served with distinction, till the outbreak of the war, in 1861, and, upon a meeting being held in the State-house yard to gather recruits, he left his editorial chair—the Press office being directly opposite the State Capitol—and was the first man in Connecticut to join the first company of the first regiment which left the State in the three months' campaign. He was made a Lieutenant, then a Captain, and subsequently, in the three years' enlistment, Colonel of the Seventh Regiment. Promotion to a Brigadier-General followed, and when he left the army, at the close of hostilities, it was with the brevet rank of a Major-General of Volunteers. From the earliest beginning of the war to the surrender at Appomattox he fought the good fight, and never once left the service. In 1866, he was elected Governor of the State, and since then has been at the editorial head of the Courant newspaper, though very much of his time he has given to speech-making and lecturing, always proving in his public life that he is a "Gentleman in Politics," which is the title of one of his lectures. He was President of the Chicago Convention in 1868, which first nominated Gen. Grant for the Presidency, and is now President of the Commission having in charge the centennial celebration of American Independence in 1876.

Mr. Eaton during all the war was a peace Democrat. After the terrible reverse to the Union arms at Bull Run, in July, 1861, he made a speech at Bloomfield, six miles from Hartford, the character of which may be judged from the following extracts:

"Your duty is to make peace, and the man who will not do that is not an honest man. The man who dares say he won't make peace cught not to number God's earth! That man is a traitor who will not make peace. * * * I was told that this meeting would be broken up. Mark the prediction! Within thirty days ten thousand men will be in council in Hartford County to demand that a stop shall be put to this damnable, unnatural war! The man who does not consider it such is not fit to live. * * * The South is not in rebellion against anybody—States cannot rebel. They are the highest sovereignty known in this country, and they can't rebel against any one. The South will never submit. Ten millions of men, understanding their rights, cannot be conquered; and them God for it! * * If any section is invaded, every spear of grass will become the tombstone of the invader! If this be treason, God knows I'll be a traitor as long as I live. * * * The South can bring more men into the field than the North can. We are fighting against odds. I think God on had no more men at Manassas! They say the South does not fight fair. If we invade their soil and homes, we must take such lightning as they give us. If I borrow my neighbor's house, I must not complain if he spits my head on the hack instead of the front. * * * Can anybody be a traitor? How? Can a Northern By suspending hostilities for six months. Let Mr. Lincoln agree to move to Mr. Davis, asking of him a suspension of hostilities, with a view to peace! Let me tell you what I think Davis will say. I know what he said last Spring: 'Let the North place themselves on the platform of the Democratic Party of Connecticut and there will be no more secession.' It is not cowardly to ask for peace. It is cowardly to refuse to listen for an insult! Cowardly to butcher our brothers of the South! * * * The man that calls me a traitor has 'coward' written on his brow. I have not yet met a man who dare call me a traitor to my face. If I'm a traitor, I'll die a traitor."

Gen. Hawley, then Lieutenant, had come home on recruiting service, and was here when this Bloomfield speech was delivered. Naturally, it made his patriotic blood boil. In the issue of the Press, which contained a report of it, the following appeared:

"The man that calls me a traitor has 'coward' written upon his brow. We know the man's face, and he dare not show it."—Extract Speech at Bloomfield.

William W. Eaton! Did you impose upon any simple-minded boy in Bloomfield by such braggadocio? You know that you are not a traitor in the legal sense of the term, for you call the river act. Were you thinking of a chance at a bloody suit, if anybody called you a traitor? Does not your sensitiveness arise from the consciousness that usually you deserve the name? Don't you know that you are doing ten times more according to your feeble influence, to destroy your country and degrade your flag than if you took up arms? If you think secession a crime, and go down into Virginia, I will call you traitor to your face at the further end of Long Bridge!

J. R. HAWLEY.

Mr. Eaton made no reply to this. Lieut. Hawley returned to the field, and Mr. Eaton, during all the long years of the war, continued his cries for peace, and as late as 1863, called the soldiers of the Union "Lincoln's hirelings—as infidel Yankee horde," because they came home to vote.

These two men are now candidates for Congress in a district that was loyal to the core during the war; and now that the opportunity is offered, the people will not fail to make choice of the man who has been always true to his country, and ever ready to avenge the insults to its flag.

Political Complacency in France.

The Pall Mall Gazette of October 10 says:

"Mr. Alphonse Karr, in Les Guêpes of this week, gives some remarkable instances of the instability of French statesmen, which excuse the apprehensions of M. Gambetta with regard to the conversion of chiefs of parties. He says that at the funeral of General Lamarque the people took the horses out of Lafayette's carriage under the pretense of drawing him in triumph, but in reality they deliberated whether they should not throw the General and his vehicle into the Seine and attribute his death to the Government. They would thus have procured "La Cadavre et cercueire à la mise en scène de l'émeute" and have punished Lafayette for betraying democracy and contributing to place Louis Philippe on the throne. The next episodic concerns Royer-Collard. When the Biographie des Contemporains was commenced, that celebrated Legislator under the Restoration; but when the author had reached the letter R, Magnitot with the Blindness of the Ultra-Royalists, had passed into the ranks of the Opposition, and was elected by votes of democrats. Royer-Collard was greatly pained in the Biography inserted; he had been stabbed in the back. He will have been roundly abused. Casimir-Périer, continues Alphonse Karr, was one of the Democratic lights from 1831 to 1830, but, once in power, he lost all his popularity and was accused of having betrayed democracy. M. Guizot, formerly a Minister, voted against the De Vigèle Ministry; he was deprived of his places and his chair was suppressed. In 1830 he was a deputy of the opposition, but, once a minister, he adopted a policy of reaction. M. Guizot was declared to have betrayed Democracy, and he dragged down the younger branch of his impopularity. M. Odilon-Barrot under the restoration, was President of the Society Aide-toi, le Ciel s'aidera, and took part in the revolution of July; he was to have presided at the famous banquet of the 22d of February. He sent the people there, but did not pay in his appearance himself; and he was accused of having betrayed the Democrats. When he and M. Thiers were named Ministers by Louis Philippe in extremis, his name was received with hooting by the people. Marrast, who was the enfant gâté of democracy when it was Opposition, betrayed it when it became President of the Assembly. And Ledru! M. Thiers was the partisan of all sorts of liberty when he was in opposition, and, adds Alphonse Karr, "il a toujours trahi le même

Correspondence of the Boston Traveller.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Saturday, Oct. 19, 1872.

Another of those interesting little romances in real life has just come to light in Washington. The bon ton is in ecstacies over it. A dapper-looking apothecary's clerk has succeeded in marrying a fortune of $2,000,000, and now he has gone West to spend it. The facts in the case, as related to me this morning, are as follows:

Six months ago a charming young lady, dressed elegantly and to the height of fashion and representing herself to be the relict of a late prominent New-York oil speculator, appeared in Washington and took up her residence at the Arlington Hotel. While at the Arlington she one day took occasion to procure an assortment of perfumery, and in quest of that desirable acquisition of the toilet, called at a drug-store situated opposite the Treasury Department. In the shop a young man waited as attractive clerk, a young gentleman of twenty-nine, who was no sooner seen than he had conquered. The next day the relict of the late New-York oil speculator invited the elegant drug-clerk to a tête à-tête at the Arlington.

Meanwhile, and even before the time of the Baltimore Convention, when Mr. Drug Clerk received a mysterious note from New-York. He went to Baltimore, there met the lady, was married, returned throughout the Convention and quietly returned to Washington to resume his occupation, the only visible means of support. The lady soon followed him here, and again went to the Arlington where she resided some time, occasionally receiving the fortunate husband and loading him with presents of diamonds, rings, gold watches, &c. Soon after this transaction he made a whole business tour in San Francisco, with the business success, a very valuable piece of property, of which she herself holds a companion in New-York. Next they started for Philadelphia, where the lady took a sudden notion to go West, and announced the fact to her friends, receiving of his intention being a telegram couched in these words:

"Shan't return. Can't avoid it. Am going to San Francisco."

Yesterday a letter was received from the Pacific Slope, containing the information that the young man had started a magnificent wholesale drug-store in the Golden Gate. The immense wealth which has fallen to his lot, together with the extraordinary manner of the match-making, and the beauty and high standing of the wife are the nine days' wonder. Our late drug clerk is of course a very stylish young man, and a very lucky young man. He was formerly a Captain in the rebel army, where it is reported he served with distinction, is well connected here, and has a good reputation in society.

Attempted Assassination in Vermont.

From the Montpelier Journal, Oct. 19.

Great excitement prevails at Randolph, in consequence of a high-handed crime which was committed Wednesday night last. Mr. Alonzo Reed, residing midway between the West and Centre villages, was aroused from sleep at dead of night by some one entering the window. He quietly rose, and, stepping one side, the intruder entered the room and at once discharged a pistol in the direction of the head of the bed. Mr. Reed responded by a shot from his pistol, which he had in readiness, and was proceeding to bind his wounded victim, when a confederate entered the window and dealt him a heavy blow upon the head, crushing his skull, and leaving him for dead. The assailants then escaped. In the morning a neighbor found Mr. Reed in the middle of the floor, still insensible, but by medical assistance he has been restored to consciousness, and the chances are that he may recover. In the melée Mr. Reed was robbed of $15 or $20. He was alone at the time of the assault, his wife being out of town. Mr. Reed apprehended trouble, for the day previous he gave his watch and some silver to a neighbor, and reloaded his pistol, which he accidently found been unspiked with—undoubtedly by these would-be assassins.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange yesterday, Monday, Oct. 21, V. K. Stevenson & Son offered at public auction a property on the south-west corner of Tenth-avenue and Sixty-fifth-street, embracing an L shaped lot, 25 by 100, rear line 50 feet, with two three-story frame buildings upon the same, for which bids to the amount of $22,350 were received. No sale, however, was effected. The only other auction proposed for the day named, legal sale by Joseph McGuire, of eight lots on One Hundred and Forty-eighth-street, 200 feet east of the King's Bridge road, was adjourned until Monday of next week. The attendance at the Exchange was very light, and business for the week opens with a dull feeling. With the exception of some slight activity in Boulevard and west-side lots, there is no life in the market, and as we remarked yesterday, none can for some little time be expected. We do not look for any special decline in prices, for all classes of realty are strongly held, but there is a probability that as the season advances considerable real estate will be offered for sale, with a view to distributing to some extent the burden now borne by a few capitalists, in carrying large blocks of lots, all improved and paying no interest on the investment. If owners would be content now with fair advances on the original prices paid, a good profit in most instances could be immediately realized, and, as a result, business would be better for all parties interested.

For today, at the Exchange, three auctions are announced, particulars concerning which were published yesterday, and at Summit, N. J., on the property, at 12½ P. M., A. D. Mellick, Jr., & Bro. will offer for sale thirty-four desirable villa plots. Special train for this auction from foot of Barclay or Christopher streets, via ferry, at 11 o'clock.

is located through Lake Michigan, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Winnebago, Brown, Outagamie and Waupaca counties, and is finished and in operation, with its five miles, and well equipped. Its earnings are sufficient to pay interest on the bonds issued, and the results already indicate a very remunerative business.

The road has been in operation one season, and will be finished the present year. Trains will be running to Menasha, for miles from Milwaukee, by the 1st of November.

Entire issue of bonds only $16,000 per mile on completed and fully-equipped road. Bonds have twenty years to run, bear interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, free of Government tax, payable in New-York on the 1st day of June and December.

We offer these bonds after careful investigation, and confidently recommend them as a safe and desirable investment.

INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND
WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Short Central Trunk Route.

This road has been in operation from Indianapolis to Pekin, 165 miles, for two years. Its earnings have rapidly increased, and the new stands sufficient to pay all current expenses, interest on all its Bonded indebtedness, including that made for its Extension, and, in addition, a dividend upon its Stock.

The Extension, is 217 miles in length, and connects Champaign with the Mississippi River at Keokuk. It passes through a well-developed part of the State of Illinois, abounding in resources for a great business, and is made in a short time equal in receipts to the other part of the Road with which it is consolidated, making a total line of 420 miles. Its ultimate western connections make this route the most direct between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

The entire road traverses a very fertile region, and possesses the best subsidy a road can have, viz.: IMMENSE BUSINESS IMMEDIATELY AT COMMAND.

Under a fair valuation, the property of the older part of the road, above prior obligations, is fully equal to amount of the Bonds now issued, which are further and completely secured by a first and only mortgage on the extension, one-half of which is near completion, and the remainder will be finished early in 1873.

The Bonds are Seven Per Cent. Gold, $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par at the option of the owner, and may be registered without charge. PRICE 90 AND ACCRUED INTEREST in currency. Coupons, January and July 1, free of tax.

We recommend the Bonds to all classes of investors as an undoubted security.

This Road, which passes through some of the richest Agricultural Counties in the State, and is on the most direct line between the Great Lakes and deep water navigation on the Hudson River, is now fast approaching completion, and will establish a new line of communication to Lake Ontario and the Great West.

The 78 miles of road now in operation and which are mutually well built, are already paying net earnings equivalent to 7 Per Cent. Gold on cost of construction and equipments. The Bonds are now offered for sale at 65, with accrued interest, and we strongly recommend them to our friends and investors as a safe and desirable Security.

NEW-YORK CITY NEWS.

MR. FROUDE'S THIRD LECTURE.

A Large Audience Present—Mr. Froude Gives an Interesting Review of Irish History.

On the occasion of the third lecture of James Anthony Froude the audience in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association was larger than on either of the former evenings. The famous lecturer made his appearance punctually at 8 o'clock, accompanied by numerous friends, among whom were Mr. Peter Cooper, Mr. Mori, the Japanese Minister; Mr. Putnam, and other distinguished gentlemen.

The lecturer said that he had closed his last lecture with the collapse of the great Irish rebellion of 1641, which commenced with massacre and ended in complete ruin. During the nine years in which the Irish chiefs had held the destinies of their country in their hands nothing had been accomplished, nothing even had been attempted, nothing had resulted save complete anarchy. And when the rebellion had collapsed what was Cromwell to do? Was he to proclaim an universal amnesty? It would be remembered that from the time that England, under Elizabeth, had declared against the papacy, the Italian and Spanish peoples had declared against England, and Ireland had declared for Italy and Spain. Ireland had made itself an eternal ever ready nucleus for insurrection and for attempts against the liberties of England. What Cromwell did was this: He meddled with no man's conscience, were the words of the Lord Protector, but he refused to allow the mass. This rite, as he knew it was not the beautiful form of Catholicism known to modern men, but it was a thing that had turned Germany into a charnel-house and Ireland into a shambles. Had his policy been adhered to it is doubtful if future troubles would have arisen to need an apologist in the nineteenth century. In the first place, he restored all the Ulster colonists to their farms, their factories and their work-shops. The common people he sent to their farms, and the gentry and the Irish chiefs and fighting men he drove into Connaught as the Saxons centuries before had driven the Britons into Wales. Then he opened up the country to emigration; he gave a lot to every soldier that accompanied him into the land, and he brushed away the restrictive commercial laws which English trading jealousy had established against Irish activity. In three years a magic breath had swept over the whole country, and it was covered with waving corn, and loaded orchards. The Irish farmer, the Scotch farmer and the English farmer lived side by side in happiness, in content and in prosperity. Cromwell died, and the Stuarts came back with the restoration. Cromwell's policy was of course abandoned, but not altogether. The Connaught plan was abolished, and the gentry were restored to one-third of their estates. The Cromwellian colonists, and the Ulster men remained undisturbed in their homes. But the Episcopal Church was restored, and over the industrious, the proud, brave Puritans, Bishops and Archbishops were set in authority to mock and to torture. The best of them would not remain Puritans, as they were; with Kings and priests they could have no abiding; so they turned their faces to the setting sun, and landing in America became among the sternest and the most patriotic of American Puritans. Other English came in their places in Ireland, money-jobbers, speculators, land-jobbers; but their presence did not do for Ireland what had been lost by emigration. The colonies of Southern Ireland went to ruin. The Episcopalians and the Catholics swept over them, uprooted them, and annihilated slowly all that had been built up by Cromwell. In Ulster, where the Scotch colonists were, there was no such luck, because the Scotch had obtained their kirk, and therefore they held their own. Charles died, and his brother James reigned in his stead. He appointed the Duke of Tyrconnell, a worthless fellow, Viceroy of the land of Ireland, and he went diligently to work to make the country Catholic, and to uproot all the non-conformist colonists. But the English excelled James, preferring to site place a Dutch Calvinist. Tyrconnell summoned an Irish Parliament, holding that James, though he had lost England, was still king of Ireland. Louis le Grand, of France, sympathized with the fallen monarch and sent him money and officers to assist his cause in Ireland. And now, when King William came to reconquer Ireland, the Irish had a better opportunity to win their liberties than ever before. The English forces were a mixture of English and Dutch, nothing like the Irish ranks. The Irish were very numerous, had been drilled by French officers, armed with French arms, and occupied strong positions. Yet they made but little stand against the arms of England. At the Boyne they resisted feebly. At Athlone they were disgracefully surprised. At Aughrim they made, indeed, a brave resistance, but only until the death of the French General, St. Ruth. After that they fled disgracefully. Against their countrymen they did little better. Londonderry and Enniskillen were not walled towns, but they could not take them. What might be the reason of such an inevitable result, seeing that the personal bravery of the Irish cannot be questioned? It must be that the common people had been so badly treated by the chiefs and their kernes and gallowglasses, that, though they would shout loudly for Sarsfield and Tyrconnell, their hearts were not in the strife.

During the interval of peace that followed the last desperate struggle of the Irish land-owners to recover their estates, two industries had been established, that of linen in the North, and that of woolen in the South. It is true that the laws against the Nonconformists had repressed emigration, but mechanics of every kind were only waiting for their repeal to embark for Ireland with all their fortunes. By the articles of Limerick and Galway the Commissioners of King William without the consent of the Parliament established the Catholic gentry in the enjoyment of their religion, and restored them to their estates. This greatly enraged the Parliament of England, and a party was formed there ever on the watch to do something adverse to the interests of Ireland. The opportunity came but too soon. An attempt was made against the King's life, and the Parliament passed a bill to defend it in some way or another. This bill the Irish Lords disdainfully threw out. At once the Anti-Irish party saw their chance, and obtained an act which at one swoop destroyed the Irish woolen trade, under pretense that Ireland was a colony, and that, therefore, must not be allowed to damage any trade of the mother country. Twenty thousand weavers left poor Ireland the same year, and in this beautiful manner England attempted to restore prosperity to a ruined country. The next move was to expel the Irish Catholic hierarchy. All the Bishops and Archbishops were driven out, but the priests were graciously permitted to remain on condition of taking the oath of supremacy. In 1704 the Irish petitioned to be admitted into the Union, but it was refused on the ground that Ireland, if admitted, would be enabled to trade, and by her superior intelligence and activity would have seriously damaged the English commerce. So the petition of the Irish Parliament was refused, and Irish statesmen were told to fall back upon their own resources. Still not satisfied with the penal laws, the English Parliament passed yet another, which was entitled "An act to resist the spread of Popery." By this precious act no Catholic could inherit property, no Catholic could practice any one of the learned professions, no Catholic could buy land or lease it, no Catholic could serve as sheriff, could go to the universities, could enter Parliament. By the same act if a child turned Protestant he could get his father's estate; if a lawyer wanted to gain a lawsuit he persuaded his client to turn Protestant. The consequence was that the land was filled with men steeped to the lips in perjuries to support their social positions. One more touch remained to be added to the frightful list of atrocious laws. The English Parliament passed an act that not a flock of Irish wool should be exported to any other country save England, and that the price should be sixpence a pound. This was because the Irish wool was so superior that one pack of Irish wool mixed with three of French enabled the French cloth-makers to compete on favorable terms with the Englishmakers, whose claim to supremacy rested on the superiority of their cloth. This rivalry was to be stopped by an embargo on Irish wools. This execrable policy brought about an universal system of smuggling, for which no country in the world is better situated than Ireland, with its deeply-indented coast-line and its numerous small bays and harbors. Everybody assisted the smugglers, from the earl to the servant-boy, and everybody exulted at the revenge that was being taken on English injustice.

In the wreck of Irish commerce the linen industry remained untouched, but the people of Ulster, all Presbyterians, did not cease to complain bitterly of the laws directed against the Nonconformists. And in this chain of injustice, heart sickness and folly was the ruin of Ireland with which modern readers are familiar. Never in the history of mankind has any race been so plundered, been so wronged, as the Irish common folk. Robbed first by their chiefs, then by English penal laws they at last fell under the sway of the middle men, who not content with taking his clothes, took also his skin and his flesh, and left him his bones. The Irishman of the last century did not live, he simply starved. In this England must be primarily responsible. She had for reasons of her own adopted Ireland, and she was bound in honor and in justice to do the best for the country thus made her own. Not only was this not done, but the contrary was done. The lecturer from this point gave a series of anecdotes, showing the condition of life among the Irish gentry, their dueling, their drinking, their debts, their humor and their misery. They ate their hearts out in misery, masked by a thousand follies, the people starved, and the best class, the Nonconformists, emigrated steadily year after year. All this time the Irish Parliament sat steadily, eloquent opposition being bribed down by the learned professions for the ambitious, money for the venal. There was no trade so lucrative as champion of Ireland's injuries in those cruel days. It had been said by a cynic that corruption was inseparable from free institutions, but it seemed to him that liberty must cast out corruption, or corruption would make an end of liberty.

This brought down the house, and he closed amid vehement applause, having again and again won plaudits from the audience, though the subject of the lecture was not so interesting to the majority as those previously given, being somewhat technical in parts.

THE REGISTRY LAW.

A Test Case—Commissioner Davenport's Power—An Interesting Question of Law.

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock George A. Heinrich, an influential and wealthy German, living at No. 185 Third-street, was brought before United States Commissioner Davenport, in his Chambers-street office, for examination on a charge of obstructing and interfering with a United States deputy marshal in the discharge of his duties.

Mr. Sam'l Hirsch urged the reception of bail pending an examination, and Mr. Davenport finally consented to receive Mr. Riegelmann in $5,000 bonds. The examination will take place on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, and the case will, doubtless, attract much attention. Mr. Davenport claims that the deputies have a legal right to enter a house to verify the registry of voters, and says that any man who treats a deputy as Heinrich did will be brought before him and punished.

The Police to Aid the United States Election Officers.

At a meeting of the Board of Police, held yesterday, the following important resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Superintendent of Police instruct the Captains of the several Precincts to inform the members of the force subject to their command, that the United States officers are now verifying the list of persons who have registered, and that they have the right to verify them by proper inquiry and examination at the respective places assigned by registered persons as their residences. It is an offense to obstruct or interfere with these officers in the performance of duty, or to refuse proper aid and assistance when required by them.

Accident on the Elevated Railway—Much Excitement Among the Passengers and Along the Line—One Man Jumps Off.

The Elevated Railway train which left Dey-street last evening at 5 P. M. occasioned considerable excitement before it reached its northern terminus. At Dey-street a large number of passengers boarded the train, but before it had passed to any distance beyond Canal-street some part of its gear broke loose, and a perceptible lessening of speed was observable. Finally the train came to a stand-still. Conductor Mangham, who was formerly a Police Sergeant, thereupon ran to the rear of the cars and signaled the train, which was but a moment behind him, to stop. It did so, and thereupon ensued an excitement. The conductor ran through the train and asked "one favor of the local passengers, that they would remain quiet" until he had taken his Hudson River Railroad people to Twenty-ninth-street, and then he would bring them back to their respective stopping places at Twenty-first-street and Twelfth-street. The conductor of the "pushing" train came on board, and a conference between the two conductors finally resulted in an understanding to stop at Twelfth-street, which was done. At this station many passengers boarded the train, who were desirous of leaving it at Twenty-first street. A reporter of the TIMES, who was among the passengers, went out on one of the platforms of the train and listened to a second conference between the two conductors relative to the propriety of stopping at Twenty-first-street. Conductor Mangham was in doubt about it, but there was no doubt with his brother conductor; so it was concluded to go on, and both conductors stationed themselves considerably over the platform-railing and, by waving their hats to their arms, signaled the engineers before and behind to go ahead. One passenger with several bundles came out from the car just below Twenty-first-street and insisted upon alighting at that station. There were many in the cars who were an anxious. The conductor reported "no stoppages," but asked the gentleman if he "would take the chances." He replied in the affirmative, and the gate was opened. When the train reached Twenty-first street, the gentleman jumped and did some very gymnastic feats before he recovered his equilibrium on the platform. The train sped on to Twenty-ninth street, and thence, after a while, returned to Twenty-first street and Twelfth-street, by which time a very large crowd had collected on Ninth-avenue, and much excitement prevailed. A couple of policemen came on board, and had a free ride down, often conversing with the conductors. Inquiries to one of them by the TIMES reporter were very gruffly repulsed. Whatever was wrong on the train, the conductors refused to be communicative; but the sight of two elevated trains locked together with a long "coupling iron," created unbounded excitement among the passengers on board and the pedestrians on the streets below.

Prospect Park Races—Fourth Day of the Meeting—Ben Morrill Wins the Four-Year-Old Stakes.

Yesterday was the fourth day of the meeting at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds, and over 5,000 people assembled to witness the two contests on the programme. The first event was the Four-year-old Colt Stake; mile heats, best three in five, in harness; value $1,600, of which $1,050 to first, $364 to second and $186 to third. Dixon, Ben Morrill and Romeo Tommy came to the post. Dixon was a great favorite, but in the first heat, while on the lead going down the backstretch, he fell, and Ben Morrill ran over him, injuring the driver of Dixon severely. Tommy had it all his own way and won the first heat. Dixon being declared disassed, Ben Morrill then won the race.

Time—2:34¾, 2:32¾, 2:38.

THE FREE FOR ALL PURSE.

The grand contest of the meeting was the $4,000 for all horses, in which Jadine Fullerton, George Palmer, Rosalind, Gazelle and Camors were entered, but the latter being lame he was withdrawn. Gazelle was the favorite before the start—she bringing $700, Rosalind $600, Judge Fullerton $200 and Palmer $225. The race was a magnificent one, but on account of darkness the conclusion was postponed until this morning. The excitement was intense, and as two of the horses belong to Wall-street financiers the stock and gold boards were fully represented on the quarter-stretch.

Reopening of the Helping Hand for Men.

The benevolent institution known as "The Helping Hand for Men," No. 316 Water-street, which has been closed for some time past for repairs, was reopened yesterday with appropriate religious services. The institution was established upward of two years since as a lodging-house for poor men, and during that period it has lodged thousands of respectable men, and found employment for a large number of others. Meals are provided at a merely nominal cost, and free when the condition of the parties is such that they cannot afford to pay for them. The house has been thoroughly refitted, and a superintendent, Mr. McCauley, has been appointed, with a view to a more extended mission work among the poor and unemployed men. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a large number of persons assembled at the formal opening in the reading-room of the institution. Religious services, singing and praying were conducted under the leadership of Rev. Geo. J. Mingins, Superintendent of Missions, Bible House, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Hall, Rev. Dr. Murray, Rev. S. H. Tyng, Jr., Rev. Mr. Smith, and others. Promises of aid have been received from many well-known and respected sources, and the Helping Hand for Men bids fair to effect much good among those for whose benefit the efforts of its founders shall be directed.

National Insurance Convention.

There were two attempts made to organize the Convention yesterday, in the morning at Underwriters' Hall, and in the evening at St. Nicholas Hotel. The attendance of members, however, was so scant that an adjournment finally took place until today. The following have arrived: Insurance Commissioners Albert W. Paine, of Maine; Gustavus W. Smith, of New-York; Oliver Pillsbury, of New-Hampshire; Stephen H. Rhodes, deputy, of Massachusetts, and William H. Finch, Examiner of Corporations, of North Carolina.

Controller Green's Opinion Sustained.

Controller Green lately called the attention of the Fire Commissioners to the fact that the charter of 1870 did not authorize them to make requisitions for money to be disbursed without any supervision by the Department of Finance, but that, as is the case with other Departments, moneys should be paid out of the City Treasury directly by warrants for the expenses they might incur. Upon their refusal to accept his interpretation of the law, he offered to pay the wages of the firemen until a judicial decision should be rendered. This was sustained yesterday in an elaborate opinion by Judge Barrett.

The Working Men and the Controller.

Messrs. John J. Dalton, Patrick Sharkey, and Geo. Linton, a committee from the United Order of Associated Housesmiths, visited Controller Green yesterday, and presented resolutions thanking him for the interest he has taken in obtaining work for some of the trades' unions. The resolutions also approve of his policy in checking waste of public moneys as conducive to the interests of the working men, as well as to the tax-payer.

THE DUNOHUE MURDER.

Henry Rogers, the Alleged Murderer, on Trial—Conclusive Evidence Against the Prisoner.

The trial of Henry Rogers, for the murder of Police Officer John Donohue, was commenced yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in Brooklyn. On the morning of Sunday, the 7th of July, Officer Donohue, of the Fifth Police Precinct, Brooklyn, while endeavoring to quiet some disorderly persons from "Battle-row," at or near the intersection of North First-street and Union-avenue, Williamsburg, was struck on the head with a heavy club by one of the party, and sustained a fracture of the skull, resulting in his death on the morning of the 11th of July. For several days succeeding the occurrence arrests were made of parties who were known or supposed to have been present when the fatal blow was struck, among them was Henry Rogers, the accused. Hugh McGoldrick, the proprietor of the saloon where the murder was committed, and several others. At the Coroner's inquest a number of the witnesses swore positively that they heard Rogers declare he would kill Donohue, and, afterward saw him strike the officer on the head. The Coroner committed Rogers for murder, and held the others as accomplices and witnesses. Since then one Flint, a very important witness for the people, made his escape from the custody of the officers.

Rogers was indicted by the Grand Jury, and the trial finally set for yesterday.

After the opening by the District-Attorney, Officer Thomas Campbell was called and sworn. He testified to having found Officer Donohue lying insensible on the pavement in front of the liquor-store in Hope-street; blood was flowing freely; with the assistance of Officer Travis, Donohue was lifted into a wagon and taken to the Fifth Precinct Station-house. Witness noticed some pieces of a broken earthen bottle on the sidewalk, near where the injured man was lying; he had been with Donohue but a short time before.

Officer Travis testified to the same facts.

Officer Thomas Holland, of the Fifth Precinct, testified that he went to the place after the occurrence, and saw a pool of blood on the sidewalk in front of the store, and saw at the Station-house pieces of a club.

Dr. Rufus Guillett testified to the character of Donohue's injuries, and that he died from the effects thereof. Dr. S. P. Speer gave similar testimony.

Hugh McGoldrich, (alias Crowe,) proprietor of the saloon, testified that the prisoner, with some twenty-three or twenty-four others, was in his place, and when they went out Rogers took the heavy wooden bar with which he secured the door when the saloon was closed, and said he (witness) could get something else to fasten the door with. Witness closed up his place, and knew nothing of the assault.

Cornelius Denver (one of the Battle-row party,) testified that Rogers stepped out and struck Donohue on the head with a heavy club, using both hands, hitting him on the base of the skull. Rogers then went home for fear he would be arrested. Abram Gibson (another of the party) testified to the same. William Hilbert (another) testified to seeing Rogers strike the blow. He saw James Flint, the escaped witness, pick up a stone, and heard him say, "I'll give it to him, too." Richard McLaughlin testified he had known the prisoner about ten or twelve years; was at McGoldrich's on the night of July 6; saw Rogers standing by the coal-box and heard him say, "I'll fix Donohue comes along here to-night I'll kill him." Saw Donohue, and saw Rogers strike him on the head with the club.

This closes the case for the people, with the exception of the testimony of Officer Hines, who arrested Rogers. This witness not being present, the Court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

BROOKLYN POLITICS.

The Fourth Ward Grant and Wilson Club.

A grand rally was held last night at Commonwealth Hall, under the auspices of the Fourth Ward Grant and Wilson Campaign Club. Hon. Thomas D. Adams, of Massachusetts, characterized Horace Greeley as the greatest political fraud that ever appeared in American politics, and said that the Democracy could not vote for a fraud more infamous than U. S. Grant, or Republicans for a better Republican. He defended the financial policy of Geo. S. Boutwell, and said that we would have no more Black Friydays under his Administration, and compared the relative conditions of the working men of Europe and America; and attributed the present prosperity here to the Republican Party. Rev. L. H. King also delivered an admirable address, which was enthusiastically applauded throughout. After a humorous speech by Gen. McLean, of Arkansas, the meeting dispersed.

The Fifth Ward Union Club.

The Fifth Ward Union Club held a mass-meeting last night, corner of High and Bridge streets. Mysterious Murder in Indiana.

From the Chicago Tribune, Oct. 19.

Henry H. Armstrong, a wealthy citizen of Madison, Ind., was killed at his own house on Thursday night. He and his wife have not been living amicably together, and he had been absent in New-Albany. At 11 o'clock he was either murdered or shot himself outside his back door. His wife stated that he entered the house without disturbing any person, took off his boots and placed them in the parlor, then descended to her room, where he beat and abused her, finally dragging her down-stairs, where, she was then secured, when he released her, she returning upstairs. A few minutes later she heard the pistol-shot, and a neighbor found Armstrong dead outside the back door; he had not put on his boots, and his hands and person indicated that he had had a severe struggle. The Coroner is trying to uncover the mystery.

THE HORSE DISTEMPER.

Ravages of the Disease Throughout Canada—But Few Fatal Cases Reported.

From the Toronto Leader, Oct. 17.

Our advices from different localities seem to indicate that the disease which prevails so generally among horses in this city, has now extended all over the Dominion, and everywhere presents the same general characteristics, showing conclusively enough that it is caused by some peculiar atmospheric influence, to which the animals are especially susceptible, as we do not learn of any such disease existing among the population where the disease prevails. So far as our observations extend, and facts all we can learn there is very little, if any, difference in the form of attack or symptoms of the disease. It seems to be simply an aggravated form of catarrh, with more or less fever attending it, and its duration is about the same in all cases. As yet but a few fatal cases are mentioned, and these are probably the result of some complication with other and previously-existing diseases, and there is no doubt that much injury is done by using nostrum mixtures which torture the poor animals and needlessly prolong their sufferings. The most skillful veterinary surgeons find no difficulty in the diagnosis of the disease, and they find it necessary to use but little medicine, relying chiefly upon strict cleanliness of the stables, keeping the air pure as possible, by removing all offensive accumulations, and for the relief and comfort of the horses, advise washing the nose and mouth frequently, so that the animal need not swallow the offensive matter which is constantly secreted and discharged.

The Disease on This Side of the Line—Its Rapid Spread.

From the Lockport Journal, Oct. 17.

Our telegraphic dispatches a few days since noticed an epidemic, which has prevailed among horses for some time in Canada, and spread over considerable part of the Dominion. It has crossed the Niagara River, and now prevails to a considerable extent at Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Buffalo, and has also reached Lockport. A number of horses in the livery-stables of this city have been taken sick with the disease, but we have not learned that any of these cases have yet proved fatal. The disease seems to be rapidly spreading among the horses in to the interior of the country. A gentleman who had business a few miles from Suspension Bridge a day or two since, says it was almost impossible to procure a conveyance, in consequence of the number of horses laid up by the malady.

Ravages of the Horse Disease in Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The horse disease prevails here to an alarming extent, and fully one-half of the horses in the city are affected. A few fatal cases have occurred. It made its appearance on Thursday. The Street Railway Company have 100 horses sick, and have taken off some of their cars. The livery-stables have stopped business. Every horse attached to O'Brien's Circus, which came here from Canada yesterday, is sick.
